Shorter work year with no loss in pay

Steelworkers aiming for guaranteed annual income

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The United Steelworkers will press for a shorter work year with no loss in pay and a guaranteed annual income in 1977 contract talks, union president I.W. Abel says.

"The time has come to give our members steady work and wages every week and every year, not just when the order books are full," Abel told 4,200 delegates Monday at the opening of a week-long convention.

The delegates today were to consider a resolution endorsing the Democratic presidential ticket of Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale — a resolution Abel clearly supports.

"I don't have to tell you we need a new occupant in the White House," he told the delegates. "We've had enough of do-nothing economic policies and government by veto."

Abel, 68, is retiring next year as head of the nation's largest industrial union. Of its 1.4 million members, about 600,000 in the basic steel industry are covered under a contract due for renegotiation next year.

"More emphasis than ever will be placed on the need for employment and wage security and the reduction of hours worked to provide more leisure and more jobs," Abel said. He didn't set a dollar figure on the wage proposal nor say in what form a reduction in work hours would be sought.

Abel tied the success of future contract goals to the national economy and criticized the Ford administration for policies which he said led to high unemployment and unchecked inflation.

An expected floor fight over the rules and credentials reports failed to materialize Monday as union dissidents made only half-hearted attempts to block their acceptance. But there was some protest over the unseating of a 16-member delegation from Local 65 in the Chicago area. The local is in district 31, headed by union activist Edward Sadlowski, a consistent critic of the Abel administration.

Sadlowski, a probable candidate in the race to succeed Abel, is generally regarded as the leader of various dissident factions.

Sadlowski made his first appearance on the convention floor when he protested the refusal to seat the Local 65 delegates. His appeal was rejected by the committee, which said the delegates had not been properly elected.

There was one incident of scuffling in which Cliff Mezo, the editor of Local 1010's newspaper in Sadlowski's district, was punched while trying to take photos of delegates. Mezo, who was wearing a jacket with a Sadlowski promotion on the back, said three men threw his camera down and struck him. He suffered a cut on his left cheek.

Abel said he deplored the incident. He also spent a good portion of his opening remarks criticizing dissidents whom he said are bent on destroying the USW.

60 arrested

London riots injure 450; shops looted

LONDON (AP) — Sixty persons began appearing in court today after the annual Calypso Carnival in North London's Notting Hill district ended in rioting and running street battles between police and civilians in the neighborhood of West Indian immigrants.

Scotland Yard reported more than 450 persons injured, three shops looted and 45 vehicles and 31 shops, offices and public facilities damaged in Monday night's violence.

Sir Robert Mark, metropolitan commissioner of police, said 325 policemen and 131 civilians were hurt. He said 119 police and 29 civilians were treated in hospitals, and one civilian and 29 police were admitted.

Mark said 50 of those arrested were black. A Scotland Yard spokesman said those arrested faced a total of 75 charges, including robbery, possession of offensive weapons, theft, threatening behavior and assault and obstruction. He said 15 are juveniles.

A magistrate sentenced Gilly Holm, a 21-year-old white student of jewelry design who allegedly grabbed two bottles of sherry from smashed shop windows, to one month's imprisonment. "This was looting. The courts must stamp out such behavior," the magistrate said.

Police said the violence broke out after black youths tried to free an arrested pickpocket in a crowded street.

"It was the worst situation that I have seen in terms of violence in my 41 years in the brigade," said Derek Fenton, London commissioner of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade.

"Almost all the trouble came from young people — youths and girls between the ages of 14 and 19 — and it was quite definitely discernible that they were using this occasion to rob other people taking part in the festival," Mark told a news conference.

Mark denied allegations by carnival organizers that the trouble was sparked by a police show of force on a festive occasion. He estimated there were 1,600 police to some 150,000 revelers and said the ratio was not unusual for crowd control.

"There is no question of the police being in any way hostile to the festival," he said.

"Nobody benefits from incidents like these. They only serve to aggravate feelings and inflame passions. If I have a message to everyone involved, it is: Cool it."

RTD appeals to Gov. Brown as prolonged walkout seen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Southern California Rapid Transit District and striking unions dug in today for what both sides conceded may be a prolonged walkout in a dispute which has idled buses for nine days.

On Monday, RTD Board President Byron E. Cook, apparently fearing the dispute may drag out longer than the crippling 68-day shutdown in 1974, appealed to Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. to seek immediate legislation declaring transit workers to be public employes. Public employes are forbidden by law to strike.

In a letter to the governor, Cook said: "In the last five years, there have been nine work stoppages called by unions representing various (transit) properties in the San Francisco Bay Area, in Sacramento and in Southern California. These work stoppages, ranging in time from six days to 68 days, have halted vital public services to hundreds of thousands of California residents without other means of getting to work, to school, to health facilities and to other necessary destinatons."

The RTD also challenged the two striking unions — the drivers' United Transportaion Union and the mechanics' Amalgamated Transit Union — to let rank-and-file members vote on the RTD offers "in a neutral atmosphere free of duress and coercion."

The walkout, which began at a minute past midnight last Monday, has forced 750,000 bus patrons to find alternate means of transportation.

In the only major movement by negotiators, the state ordered the RTD and the mechanics union back to the bargaining table Wednesday morning. The decision to resume talks came after a 90 minute, closed-door session between state Conciliator Thomas McCarthy and chief RTD negotiator John Wilkens.

Goldy Norton, a spokesman for the drivers' union, said of the proposal to make transit workers public employes, "Unions have always opposed this and will continue to do so. We don't think the RTD has much chance of getting that kind of legislation passed."

In response to the RTD's challenge to let the union membership vote on the wage offers, Norton said, "The RTD is not going to tell us what to do. We will take their proposal to the members when they give us something we feel we can live with."

The drivers are seeking pay and benefits increases totaling 22 per cent over three years. The RTD has offered 19.5 per cent.

The mechanics union, seeking a 22.97 per cent package, reportedly scheduled a membership vote late this week on the RTD's pre-strike proposal, but a union official predicted it would be rejected unanimously.

Meanwhile, the RTD began disbursing flat-sum payments to the company's 5,000 drivers and 1,000 mechanics. The pay was due to workers last Friday for work done in the two-week period before the strike began last Monday.

But the drivers union filed suit in Superior Court, contending that workers should have received full paychecks, not the partial, flat-sum pay they were receiving.

In other action, City Councilmen approved a $516,000 subsidy for the downtown minibus system to keep fares at 25 cents a ride.

$41.9 billion

Senate panel extends revenue-sharing plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — State and local governments would receive $41.9 billion in federal revenue-sharing funds over the next six years under a plan approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

The committee approved a bill on Monday to extend the revenue-sharing program, which expires at the end of this year, until Sept. 30, 1982. The new program would start at a $6.9-billion annual rate in January and grow by $150 million in each of the next five years.

The House on June 10 passed a three-year, nine-month extension, with payments to total $24.9 billion. The House bill would continue payments uniformly at the current $6.65-billion annual rate until Sept. 30, 1980.

The Ford administration favored the longer extension.

The government has distributed $30.2 billion since the program began five years ago.

The committee eased the reporting requirement for revenue-sharing procedures, requiring only that budgets be developed and published locally, with opportunity for local public hearing.

The committee voted down a House-passed provision to broaden nondiscrimination provisions by adding prohibitions based on age, handicapped status and religion. The committee retained current provisions banning use of revenue-sharing funds for projects discriminating on the basis of race, color, national origin or sex.

It also developed new procedures to prevent cutoffs of federal funds without a full hearing before a court or federal administrative law judge.

The current formula under which states get one-third of the federal tax sharing payments while cities and counties receive two-thirds remains unchanged in both the House and Senate committee bills.

The committee voted to permit states to use revenue-sharing funds as local matching funds for federal projects.

Labor Day gas prices higher than on July 4

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A survey of gasoline retailers indicates that fuel prices will be about two cents higher per gallon on the Labor Day weekend than during the July 4 holiday.

An Automobile Club of Southern California report released Monday said motorists could realize a savings of as much as eight cents a gallon by comparison shopping. Using selfserve facilities could save holiday drivers three to nine cents a gallon.

Test cracks section in B1 bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force said today a B1 bomber body test section cracked while being subjected to greater-than-normal stresses.

The affected part was in a section of B1 fuselage being tested in a pressure chamber, not in one of the three prototype bombers being test flown, an Air Force spokesman said.

Various sections designed for the costly and controversial bomber are placed under "higher concentrated loads than what we would see in the air," the spokesman said.

Nonetheless, the crack in a strengthening member called a "longeron" is bound to draw attention in the light of a growing controversy over whether the United States should build the B1 bomber.

Announcement of the crack during the test came as a Senate-House conference committee sought to resolve differences over whether the Ford administration should be required to delay a decision on whether to produce the B1.

8-day-old boy killed, mother, 2 others hurt in crash, fire

An 8-day-old boy died and his mother and two other adults were critically burned when the pickup truck in which they were riding tipped over and caught fire Monday in Pomona.

Pomona Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes said the child was Jose Jesus Munoz of 4604 Bandera St., Apartment D, Ontario.

Those burned in the accident, which occurred at 10:44 a.m. on Reservoir Street at the Pomona Freeway, were the mother, Maria Delores Munoz, 23, of the Ontario address; Fabiola Castro, 18, address unknown; and Manuel Munoz, 21, also of the Ontario address.

Fowlkes said firemen arrived at the scene to find the truck tipped on its side and in flames. The three adults were sitting at the curb under the freeway overpass.

Munoz told them a child was in the truck. Firemen extinguished the flames, righted the truck and found the baby crushed and burned under the left side of the cab, Fowlkes said.

Fowlkes said an autopsy probably will be performed to determine whether the baby was crushed to death or died in the fire.

A county helicopter was dispatched to transport the Castro woman to the burn center of the San Bernardino County General Hospital in San Bernardino.

Both Manuel Munoz and Maria Munoz were taken by helicopter to the burn center of the County-USC Medical Center in Los Angeles. All three are in critical condition today.

Maria Munoz has burns over 47 per cent of her body. Manuel Munoz and Fabiola Castro both have second and third degree burns.

Fowlkes said the pickup truck had a "top-heavy" load of cardboard and possibly was traveling at excessive speed. It tipped when Munoz attempted to negotiate a turn onto the freeway offramp.

It burst into flames when gasoline leaking from a loose fitting was ignited by friction.

Flames from the burning truck spread to a field on Reservoir and blackened a 40 by 80-foot patch of grass.

Highway patrolmen were called to investigate the accident.

Viking II to land among sand dunes

PASADENA (AP) — A precise landing spot has been pinpointed on Mars' Utopia Plain for the touchdown of America's second Viking automated laboratory on Friday.

If all goes well, the 1,300-pound landing craft identical to the one already resting on the planet's surface will come to rest among sand dunes.

The landing is scheduled for about 4 p.m. PDT. Like the Viking 1 lander that arrived on July 20, the second craft will plop down on its three legs, take pictures of the area, and begin life-search experiments about a week later.

Another hot one today, but relief's in sight

It's going to be another scorcher today — topping out at about 102 — but the end of the current heat wave seems to be in sight.

The weatherman is reporting a shift in air flow from the mountains to the ocean, bringing with it a cooling trend that may drop temperatures at least five degrees Wednesday and more by Thursday.

If the shift materliaizes, it will end a three-day spell of high readings — the hottest of the year in Pomona.

The mercury soared to 104 degrees Monday at the Cal Poly weather station, where the official Pomona temperatures are taken. However, other parts of the valley were much higher with Ontario reporting a sizzling 110 degrees for the second straight day.

Adding to the discomfort of the heat were high humidity, which hovered in the 60s most of the afternoon, and first and second stage smog episodes throughout the valley.

Second stage episodes with more than 40 parts of pollutants per million parts of air occur only a couple of times a year in the valley. One was reported in Upland Monday between 5 and 6 p.m.

The Pomona Parks Department took official cognizance of the heat wave today. It announced that the Washington Park pool, which was to close last Sunday, will remain open until Labor Day to offer some relief from the heat. Hours are noon to 5 p.m.

Monday's high did not set a record. The highest Aug. 30 was in 1967, when the mercury reached 105.6 degrees.

Vitamin C better than swine flu vaccine?

Cheaper, no side effects: Pauling

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dosing the public with Vitamin C would be as effective in controlling swine flu as President Ford's $135 million innoculation program, Dr. Linus Pauling said Monday.

"Vitamin C is equally effective against flu as against the common cold," said Pauling, a Nobel laureate who long has recommended large doses of the vitamin in fighting colds.

Large segments of the medical world disagree with Pauling's Vitamin C theories. They say research shows no benefits from excessive doses of the vitamin and that there may even be hazards in using excessive amounts.

Pauling told a news conference at the American Chemical Society meeting that there is little danger of a killer epidemic of swine flu as in 1918, when 20 million died around the world.

"It seems to me there was a sort of scare campaign" about the swine flu after scientists speculated that victims of the Philadelphia "Legionnaires' disease" might have been infected by the virus, Pauling said.

President Ford has announced a goal of innoculating the entire population of 200 million Americans. "It's really political," Pauling said. "Britain, France, Germany, Canada, all decided to do nothing about manufacturing a swine flu vaccine.

"Swine flu is only one-third as infectious and one-third as virulent" as more common strains of influenza, he said. "If large numbers of people are getting it, there is a chance there might be a mutation of the virus that would make it very virulent."

But pauling said six months have passed since the last case of swine flu in Ft. Dix, N.J., and "there is no evidence a swine flu epidemic is going to get started."

He recommended the innoculations for doctors and nurses and perhaps for the elderly and infirm.

But for the general population: "I think people should take Vitamin C regularly in the amount that keeps them in good health and very large doses if they feel they are coming down with something."

He recommended 250 to 10,000 miligrams a day, in contrast with the federal government's standard of 250. Pauling said he himself takes 10,000 milligrams daily.

Such doses of Vitamin C would protect 75 per cent of the population in the event of a widespread swine flu epidemic — about the same as the highest estimates of the vaccination program, he said.

He added that Vitamin C users would not be subject to the vaccination's side effect of pain, fever and headache, which he said will effect half of those innoculated.

Pauling, author of "Vitamin C and the Common Cold," addressed a dinner meeting of the Society later. He said a new book, "Vitamin C, the Common Cold and the Flu" will be published in October.

Brown noncommittal on right-to-death bill

Death with dignity

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has refused to say what action he'll take on a bill that would allow terminally ill patients to refuse life-sustaining medical care and "die with dignity."

The so-called "right-to-death" bill was passed by the legislature Monday. The measure was prompted, in part, by the case of Karen Ann Quinlan, the young, comatose New Jersey woman whose parents won a prolonged court fight for the right to remove her from artificial life support.

Brown has 30 days to either sign the bill or veto it. If he takes no action by the end of that time, it becomes law. California would be the first state to have such a law.

Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, the bill's author, said that under the measure a person could "die with dignity" by signing a "living will" authorizing a doctor to stop lifesupporting procedures if death is imminent.

"Will they spend their last few days in a manner befitting human dignity or (be) kept alive with respirators, pumps on their hearts, pumps on their lungs, pumps on every part of their body, kept alive longer than they would have wished?" Keene asked the Assembly.

Before a 43 to 25 vote in the Assembly, Keene admitted that a yes vote would take courage and "your courage will be noted now and into the future."

One opponent, Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, questioned whether this was just a "foot in the door" for state-sanctioned killings.

Another foe, Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, compared the measure with California's 1967 therapeutic abortion act, which he said was expanded far beyond the intent of the legislature by court rulings and procedures adopted by doctors.

In the debate, Keene said his bill would not affect a case similar to that of Miss Quinlan, who went into a coma immediately and never had an opportunity to sign an authorization for doctors to remove her from a respirator.

The Assembly's vote was on Senate changes in the measure, which had the support of elderly groups and the California Medical Association. It was opposed by prolife groups.

Charge three in coin dealer mystery death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three men have been charged in the year-old murder of a Chicago rare-coin dealer who disappeared after arriving here on a business trip.

Raymond Yablun, 59, reportedly was carrying $10,000 in cash and more than $100,000 worth of rare coins when he disappeared Aug. 13, 1975.

The men charged on Monday were identified as Frank Lapa, 45, Yablun's former West Coast agent; used-car dealer Lee S. Rusetos, 32, of West Chicago, and Powell C. Crosby, 59, a Wilmington, Calif., stevedore.

Detectives said they had been hampered in their investigation by the lack of a body until an informer told them last week that they might be able to identify a corpse unearthed by the wind near Yosemite National Park as that of Yablun.

A positive identification of the body was made last week.

Lapa, formerly of Chicago, was charged with murder. He is currently serving a five-year federal prison term for the unrelated theft of $6,000 in rare coins from Yablun's shop in May 1975.

Rusetos was arrested Thursday by FBI agents in Phoenix and waived extradition to California, while Crosby was arrested Friday in his home.

Police said they believed Lapa lured Yablun to the West Coast with a report of a big coin sale to be made to a fictitious millionaire. They said Lapa reportedly ordered Rusetos to follow Yablun on a flight from Chicago.

Once in California, the detectives said, Lapa beat Yablun to death with a heavy ashtray and ordered Resetos and Crosby to use a rented car to dispose of the body.

Under California law, persons knowingly disposing of a murdered body can be charged with murder themselves.

Coins identified as being in Yablun's possession had begun turning up in West Coast coin shops and collections before Lapa's arrest on the theft charge, police said.

Japanese prosecutors pursue Lockheed scandal in L.A. court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Japanese prosecutors investigating Lockheed payoffs to Japanese officials have taken additional testimony from former Lockheed Aircraft Corp. chief executive A. Carl Kotchian.

The testimony apparently was taken in an effort to clear up details which Kotchian revealed in an interview given earlier to a Tokyo newspaper.

The Japanese took a second deposition from Kotchian on Monday in a closed-door session attended by representatives of the U.S. Justice Department. Details of the session were not made public, and Kotchian said he did not intend to discuss the session.

But a source close to the Japanese probe indicated that the Japanese were seeking Kotchian's testimony on six Tokyo politicians allegedly involved in $2 million in Lookheed payoffs in Japan to influence sale of Lockheed aircraft.

This source said previous Kotchian depositions did not name the Japanese politicians, although Kotchian subsequently named them in a lengthy interview he gave to the Japanese newspaper Asahi Shimbun.

Two of the Japanese named by Kotchian in the interview — T. Hashimoto and T. Sato — have already been arrested in Japan in connection wih the case.

Japanese prosecutors reportedly also sought clarification from Kotchian on whether Lockheed considered the payments to be bribes or commissions. In the Asahi interview, Kotchian was quoted as saying the payments were bribes. But the source said that in his previous deposition Kotchian told Japanese probers that the payments were commissions on sale of Lockheed aircraft to the Japanese government.

The deposition taken from Kotchian Monday was to be forwarded to the prosecutor's office in Tokyo. There was no indication when, or if, it would be made public there.

State briefs

Atom fuel cartel

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An Australian government official said in a memo that his country would have to use the United States to launder any uranium sales to Taiwan, a California official says.

California Public Utilities Commission member Leonard Ross said Monday that this memo implied Australian government involvement in a cartel of uranium producers.

Taiwan has bought uranium from the United States. Australian law does not permit it to sell to nations that have not signed the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Coastline bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The last of a string of bills that together are designed to save California's 1,100-mile coastline from overdevelopment have cleared different legislative houses.

The Senate approved a measure Monday that would earmark $31.2 million for coastal purposes, including $1.5 million to fund the state coastal commission through the first half of 1977.

Meanwhile, the Assembly passed a bill by Assemblyman Gary Hart, D Santa Barbara, that would make compromise changes in this year's major coastal bill.

The Hart measure went to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. on a 69-6 roll call. The Senate's 30-10 vote sent the McCarthy proposal back to the Assembly for action on upper house amendments.

Both bills are follow-up measures to the main coastal bill, which cleared the legislature last week after Brown and environmentalists agreed to the changes amended into Hart's bill.

Teenage crackdown?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation aimed at cracking down on 16 and 17 year olds who repeatedly commit violent crimes has won state Senate approval.

Assemblyman Julian Dixon, D-Los Angeles, authored the bill that gives district attorneys the power to decide if a 16 or 17 year old charged with a history of violent crimes should be tried as an adult.

That decision is now made by the juvenile court.

In debate Monday, supporters said that a district attorney is more likely than a juvenile court judge to have a juvenile tried in adult court.

If a 16 or 17 year old were tried in adult court, he or she could be sentenced to state prison, but could not receive the death penalty.

The bill would apply to 16 and 17 year olds with a prior conviction for one of a long list of serious crimes, including murder, rape, assault with intent to murder, and kidnaping.

U.C. hood invasion

BERKELEY (AP) — The nine University of California campuses were infiltrated by a growing stream of nonstudent criminals in 1975, a university report says.

The report released Monday on crime for that year, revealed that arrests on the UC campuses were up 25 per cent from 1974.

A majority of the arrests involved male nonstudents, the report said, "an indication of the vulnerability of the campuses to nearby transient populations."

Probe aged homes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — City Atty. Burt Pines has ordered a major crackdown by county inspectors on health and cleanliness standards in boarding homes for the aged.

Pines vowed Monday that his office would back up the inspectors in their investigations of the 230 board-and-care facilities in the city, promising civil and criminal sanctions against those that do not meet care standards.

"We have seen all too many instances of abuse and problems in this industry," Pines said, "all too many instances of patient neglect, patient abuse, patients' and residents' funds being misappropriated and mishandled, lack of adequate fire safety and other safety equipment."

Prison rendezvous

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Two followers of Charles Manson who once lived in the same Sacramento apartment house were together again today in the Metropolitan Correctional Center but not sharing quarters.

Susan Murphy and Diane Ellis were flown from Portland, Ore., where they were captured last Thursday after escaping from Terminal Island federal prison in Los Angeles.

Already at the downtown San Diego prison is Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, like Murphy a Manson follower. She is serving a life term for trying to kill President Ford.

Murphy, 34, was sentenced for conspiracy to send threatening letters to businessmen accusing them of polluting te environment.

Ellis, 33, was imprisoned for parole violation after being convicted of bank robbery.

Workmen's comp.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A joint Senate-Assembly committee raced the clock today in quest of a compromise bill that backers said would save some insurance companies and the state workers' compensation fund from disaster.

At issue is the rising number of claims called "cumulative trauma," like job-related lung disease by employes who, for example, have worked with asbestos.

The bill, opposed by local government, could shift millions of dollars in insurance liability from insurance companies and the state workers's compensation fund to self-insurers, such as cities and a few large private companies.

The Assembly Monday refused to accept amendments on the Senate passed measure by Assemblyman Terry Goggin, D-San Bernardino, sending the bill into a Senate-Assembly conference committee.

A conference committee report, to include amendments aimed at easing local government opposition, would need Senate and Assembly approval by midnight tonight, when the legislature is scheduled to adjourn the 1975-76 session.

Since many local governments have gone the self-insured route, the state fund has had a steadily dwindling base of premiums from which to make claims payments.

Malpractice

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A doctor-backed malpractice bill that promotes doctor-owned insurance companies is one step away from Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s desk.

And the author says Brown, who vetoed a somewhat similar bill earlier this year, probably will sign this one. 4

The measure by Assemblyman Fred Chel, D-Long Beach, backed by the California Medical Association, would exempt doctor-owned companies from state insurance reserve requirements if they met certain financial standards.

The companies have sprung up in increasing numbers since malpractice premiums started climbing last year.

The CMA says the companies are a better short-range alternative than a state-run insurance fund. Such a fund would have been created, if doctors approved, under an administration-backed bill that was defeated this year.

The bill would exempt doctor-owned companies from state insurance reserve requirements if they had $20,000 minimum contributions from each doctor and at least $10 million in total contributions.

'Dazzling, unbelievable' new nerve gas

Scientists fear proliferation

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Scientists say the Pentagon is seeking funds to develop a new nerve gas weapon that they fear could usher in an era of "dazzling, unbelievable" chemical weaponry.

The device, known as a "binary weapon," would contain two or more relatively harmless chemicals which form a highly toxic nerve gas when the weapon is fired, said Dr. R.J. Rutman, a University of Pennsylvania biochemist. He was here for a symposium on binary warfare at the American Chemical Society meeting today.

"The binary weapon has been called the 'escalatory weapon par excellence,'" he told a news conference Monday. "The only effective response to it is a nuclear weapon or something more exotic."

Rutman said replacing existing stocks of nerve gas canisters with binary weapons could make nerve gas politically acceptable by removing the danger of storing and moving an already poisonous gas.

G.R. Berdes, a staff member of the House Committee on International Relations, said "middle-level bureaucrats" in the Pentagon were eager to get funding for a program, twice voted down by Congress, to develop binary nerve gas weapons.

A Defense department representative was invited to the symposium to discuss the Pentagon's position, but a Chemical Society spokesman said the department canceled, citing personnel changes.

In July 1975, Congress voted down an Army request for $562,000 to prepare a building at Pinehurst Arsenal in Arkansas for manufacturing binary gas weapons. A year earlier, Congress rejected a $5.8-million request for developing the weapons.

Berdes said a U.S. decision to start producing the weapons would increase proliferation of chemical weaponry and "pull the cork completely" on negotiations under way in Geneva toward complete chemical disarmament.

"The binary is the first in a long line of new weapons. They are dazzling, unbelievable," he said, citing futuristic schemes for weapons that could "vaporize" an enemy.

Rutman said the weapon might consist of an artillery shell loaded with one chemical and a canister filled with another chemical.

The canister would be placed inside the shell, he said, and "the impact of firing and acceleration would then break the partition between the containers ..." and the contents would be mixed.

Heat generated by the friction of the flight or by the presence of additional accelerator chemicals would complete their conversion into nerve gas by the time the shell reached its destination, Rutman said, and a charge in the projectile's nose would spread the gas.

Will blast heat up nuclear power debate?

Increased demands for safeguards seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chemical explosion at a nuclear fuel reprocessing facility in Richland, Wash., is likely to heat up the debate over the safety of the U.S. nuclear power industry.

Eight workers at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation were exposed to radiation after the explosion Monday inside a "glovebox," a small, sealed compartment through which workers use rubber gloves to handle radioactive materials.

Although the blast did not involve a nuclear reactor, the mishap may touch off a new round of demands for safeguards at all nuclear installations, including both chemical facilities and the nearly five dozen commercial plants now producing power from nuclear fission.

Although nuclear energy is still in its infancy, the industry has a good safety record, with few cases of exposure and no fatalities in commerical operations. Last year, nuclear energy provided under 7 per cent of the nation's electricity. It is expected to grow to 26 per cent of the produced electricity by 1985.

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission and environmental groups differ over the potential hazards from the growing industry.

Critics and supporters generally agree that a reactor, composed of spaced clusters of fuel rods, could not create a nuclear explosion, which requires the slamming together of very pure atomic materials.

But critics fear that an unlikely combination of malfunctions, accidents or sabotage could cause a reactor core to melt and break through its containment structures.

In that case, they say, radioactive fuel and waste products vaporized by their own heat could spread through the air and reach thousands of people, depending on local geography and weather conditions. While everyone is exposed to small amounts of natural radiation, some experts fear larger doses could cause birth defects and cancer.

Critics worry about accidental releases of radiation at any step during the long fuel-handling process.

Resin heads cause of nuclear explosion?

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — Resin beads the size of BBs may have triggered the chemical explosion at a reprocessing plant here that contaminated 10 persons with radioactivity, an official says.

"We don't know exactly what happened," said Phil Craig, nuclear processing chief for the Energy Research and Development Adminstration here. "But I believe the resin beads, which had been in use for several months, degraded when ... nitric acid hit them and something went wrong."

Monday's blast on the Hanford Nuclear Reservation did not involve a nuclear reactor, and there was no serious radiation leak beyond the relatively isolated Atlantic Richfield Hanford Co. (ARHCO) building where the explosion occurred in a concrete room, authorities said.

Officials said the cause of the explosion would not be known immediately. Investigators were barred from entering the contaminated room for at least 24 hours.

Eight workers and two nurses who work at a medical facility at the plant were contaminated. Six of the workers were washed clean of radioactive material shortly after the explosion and sent home. The two nurses were washed off and returned to work.

ARHCO President George Stocking said the explosion occurred in a sealed-off compartment or "glovebox" measuring 4 by 8 by 9 feet inside the 30-by-40-foot concrete room. Workers use rubber gloves to extract a radioactive element on the other side of a window in the compartment with the aid of nitric acid and resin beads in a three-foot cylinder.

The commercial facility makes americium, a radioactive element produced by nuclear fission. It is recovered from waste produced by nuclear reactors and is used in petroleum exploration to measure ground heat and also is used as a source of radiation in some medical procedures. It is separated from other materials through the use of acids and resins.

Craig said the americium is extracted in a three-foot cyclinder. The operator in the concrete room had finished one flushing with nitric acid, Craig said, and was executing another flushing maneuver.

"He saw steam coming from the top of the cylinder and knew something was wrong," Craig said. "He started backing away from the window when it shattered. The material sprayed over him like paint."

"There was a chemical reaction which caused the radioactive material to fly out into the room,' Stocking said. "As far as we know, no radioactivity was released into the atmosphere, but some material was tracked out of the room but remained confined to the building."

Bakeoff winners

BOSTON (AP) — A "Whole Wheat Raisin Bread" which costs Lenora Smith of Harahan, La., about 65 cents a loaf to make won her the $25,000 first prize today in the Pillsbury 27th Bake-Off contest.

Mrs. Lois Ann Groves of Tucson, Ariz., recently of San Antonio, Tex., won the $25,000 refrigerated foods category prize with her "Caramel Swirl Ring" with homemade caramel sauce.

Mrs. Smith said she originated her recipe when she "needed whole wheat bread for a party."

Timothy Troendle of Newport, Ky., one of two men entered with 98 women in the contest, won a $2,000 prize for his "Cheesy Lasagna Pizza."

Three $5,000 winners were Mrs. Reta Ebbink of Torrance, Calif., for a "Cheesy Biscuit Skillet Dinner;" Mrs. Josephine DeMarco of Chicago for her "Caramel Apple Cake," and Mrs. Mary Lou Wunderle of Kent, Ohio, for a "Hearty Sausage Casserole."

Kissinger critical of S. Africa race policy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today scored South Africa's policy of racial segregation as "incompatible with any concept of human dignity."

Kissinger said that when he meets in Switzerland this weekend with South African Prime Minister John Vorster, he will press Vorster to move toward equality.

At the same time, Kissinger credited South Africa with "positive steps" regarding Rhodesia and Namibia and said that unlike those two areas, South Africa cannt be regarded as an illegitimate government or "an outside colonial intrusion."

In a prepared speech before a mostly black audience, Kissinger pledged a continued U.S. commitment to "a new birth of independence and racial peace" in Southern Africa. He said that with thousands of Cuban troops north of the Namibian border and with intensifying guerrilla warfare in Rhodesia "a volatile situation is emerging."

Based on the outcome of his meeting with Vorster, Kissinger may go on to Africa to promote majority rule in Namibia and Rhodesia and an end to apartheid in South Africa.

His speech to the Opportunities Industrialization Centers in Convention Hall here is part of a campaign for American black support for the Ford administration's African policy.

Sources in Washington said Kissinger will try to persuade Vorster that "time is running out" for avoiding the escalation of guerrilla warfare in Namibia, which South Africa controls, and in Rhodesia.

Volcano explodes in rock shower; scientists hurt

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — A vapor explosion inside the Soufriere volcano showered 12 scientists with rocks and injured two of them, officials on this French Caribbean island reported.

The explosion Monday was the largest since the 4,813-foot-high volcano began emitting sulphurous fumes and ashes nearly eight weeks ago. But volcano experts did not classify the blast as an eruption.

It caught 11 French scientists and one Briton near the rim of the fissure that opened in the side of the volcano on July 8. Falling rocks blocked the road down from the peak, and two helicopters rescued the scientists.

"We might have been killed if it had not been for our helmets," said Haroun Tazieff, one of France's leading volcanologists.

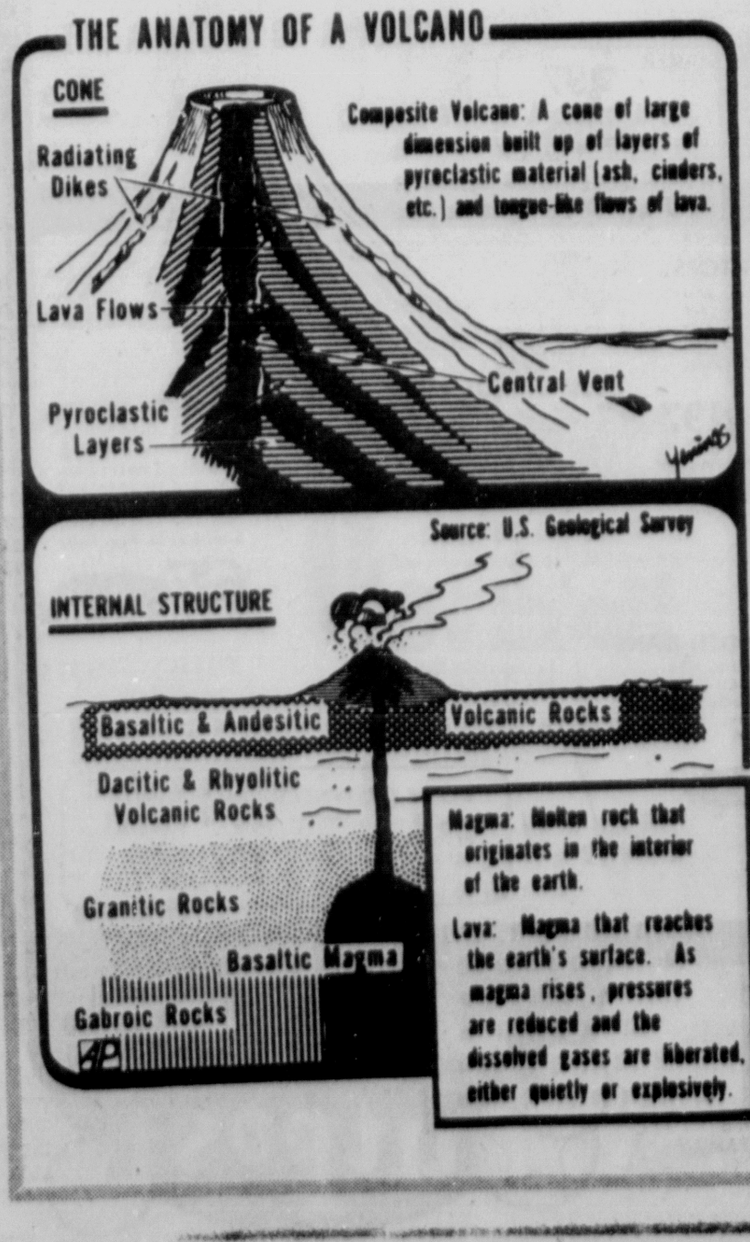
Francois Le Guern suffered a back injury and a scientist named Bof got a cut on a thigh. Both were reported in satisfactory condition.

Two American scientists, Dr. Richard Fiske and W.T. Kinoshita, were taking measurements about halfway up the mountain, but they were not injured.

In a telephone report to the U.S. Geological Survey in Washington, Fiske said the explosion was a "large one" that spewed forth clouds of ash, debris and mud. He said he believed the volcano would now subside.

Fiske and Kinoshita flew from Washington to Guadeloupe last week to observe La Soufriere. Fiske said there had been "significant inflation" of the volcanic activity in recent days.

The government evacuated 72,000 people living within a radius of six miles of La Soufriere more than two weeks ago after scientists predicted a major eruption. So far there has been continuous activity inside the crater, repeated explosions and numerous earth tremors, but not the predicted big eruption.



Judge finds Cleveland school board guilty of segregation

CLEVELAND (AP) — A federal judge ruled today the Cleveland school board fostered racial segregation in the city schools and that the state Board of Education failed to do enough to correct it.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. Battisti found the Cleveland board violated city school pupils' constitutional rights to equal protection under the law "by intentionally creating and maintaining a segregated school system.

"The state Board of Education cannot escape liability by virtue of their historic proclamations of benevolent intent when such acts were coupled with frequent declarations of inability to act," the judge said.

Although it "knew of its obligations and authority in the area of racial segregation," he said, "... the board chose not to actively pursue the goal of integration but rather to sit back and let the problem come to them ..."

The 200-page decision came in a class action suit brought by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People on behalf of the system's about 127,000 pupils, of which about 57 per cent are black.

The judge ordered both boards to submit a plan within 90 days for desegregation of the system.

The NAACP maintained throughout the trial that only cross-town busing would achieve integration.

Battisti also said he intends to appoint "a special master" to assist the court in the next stage, that of finding a remedy.

He also barred the school board from beginning any construction pending court review of the integration plan.

In a news conference following the decision, Nathaniel Jones, chief NAACP attorney, said it was the first in which a state board had been found guilty in a school segregation case.

Jones said the implications of the finding were far-reaching in that it may be possible in future integregation cases to seek relief directly from the state board rather than from the courts. He noted that the board has the power to withhold funds and to approve district boundaries.

Cleveland schools Supt. Paul Briggs again contended, as he did during the trial, that the city board "is not a segregative board. The segregation that exists in Cleveland schools is caused by housing. The board has done nothing to knowingly segregate the schools."

Battisti said that in 1975, nearly 92 per cent of Cleveland's pupils attended schools in which enrollment was 90 per cent or more of one race. That amounted to 150 of the system's 180 schools. In 1940, the percentage attending such "one-race" schools was 51, he said.

"The proportion of black students in the Cleveland public schools who have been regularly receiving their education in an integrated setting has steadily diminished in the past 35 years," Battisti said.

Both sides in the suit agreed that segregation did exist, and both agreed that integration was morally desirable.

The NAACP contended that when the large influx of blacks began in the 1950s, they had little choice but to live in innercity neighborhoods. The civil rights group said real estate practices, encouraged by Federal Housing Administration policies, dictated that blacks would settle in these neighborhoods.

This created a "loaded game board," the NAACP charged, which the school board could have counteracted by striving for integrated schools. Instead, the group contended, the school board perpetuated the segregation by adhering to a neighborhood school policy.' The NAACP presented more than 300 instances in which it said the school board acted with segregative intent. Nathaniel Jones, chief NAACP attorney, said this was more instances than in any other case tried by the group.

Steel firms follow lead; no price hike

PITSBURGH (AP) — The nation's largest steel firms have withdrawn proposed 4.5 per cent price hikes on products used in autos and appliances.

But General Motors says it will stand by retail price hikes averaging about 6 per cent on 1977 autos. The firm had attributed part of the increase to higher steel prices, but it said other factors still justify the new prices.

U.S. Steel Corp., which initiated the proposed steel hikes Aug. 13, announced their withdrawal Monday, two days before they were to become effective. Bethlehem, Jones & Laughlin, Wheeling-Pittsburgh and Inland indicated later Monday that they would follow suit.

Spotlight on area crime

Pulled from car, beaten by gang

A salesman from Newport Beach was beaten severely and robbed late Monday night in Pomona.

The victim, Robert Garrett, 50, was pulled from his car by three youths after one hailed him as he was driving in the 2300 block of Lovejoy Street. Garrett suffered serious facial injuries. He was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Witnesses told police that Garrett was northbound in Lovejoy Street when one of the youths stepped into the street and hailed him. When he stopped, the other two ran to the car and the three pulled him out, knocked him down and beat and kicked him as he lay in the street. They pulled his wallet from his pocket, took the cash and looted the briefcase that was inside the car. Then they ran. One lost a shoe in the middle of the street in his haste.

All were black with the leader 5 feet 10 and thin. He wore a white shirt, blue trousers and had a large afro hairdo. All three robbers were believed to be in their late teens.

Youths rob gas station

Two youths, both armed with firearms, robbed a POMONA service station late Monday afternoon at 2207 W. Valley Blvd., police reported.

The victims, owner Vincent Frahlich, 31, and clerk Jonathan L. Rothe, 22, said the pair bought candy bars a few minutes before returning with the weapons. One had a rifle and the other a pistol. After looting the cash register the pair fled on foot.

Both robbers were black between 15 and 16. One was thin, wore a dark coat and carried a .22-caliber revolver.

Gas station robbed

A man armed with a sawed off shotgun is being sought by ONTARIO police in connection with the robbery of the Go Lo Self-Service Station, 808 N. Mountain Ave. Monday night.

Service station attendant Steve Wilcoxon, 22, told officers that a man came into the office and asked him for the key to restroom. Wilcoxon said the man followed him to get the key and suddenly pulled a sawed off shotgun out of paper bag he was holding.

The gunman ordered Wilcoxon to hand over the cash from the register and the money from his wallet. The attendant complied and the gunman fled on foot.

The robber was described as a white, 20 to 25, 6 feet 3, 170 pounds with long blond hair. He was wearing dark glasses, a blue-gray shirt and blue jeans.

Arrested in burglary

A 20-year-old San Bernardino man spotted inside of a closed service station at 1065 W. Holt Blvd. in ONTARIO Sunday was booked in the West End Jail on burglary charges.

Robert Bruce Berlin of San Bernardino, according to Ontario Police Officer Kenneth Hill, was rummaging around inside of Jimmie's Self-Service Station about 11:20 p.m. Sunday. Hill stopped at the station and arrested Berlin as he came out of the building.

Man held for gunshots

A 29-year-old man was arrested by police early this morning after three shots were fired in the bedroom of a home at 920 S. San Antonio Ave., ONTARIO police reported.

Danny Monroe Scott of the San Antonio Avenue address was arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and booked in the West End Jail as a result of the incident.

Police said that Scott got into an argument with Majorie Louise Staggs, 34, of the same address about 4 a.m. Police said that in the course of the argument Scott took out a .22 caliber revolver and fired two shots into the bedroom threatening to kill the woman and himself. The woman told officers that she grabbed the suspect's hand in an effort to take the gun and a third shot was fired.

Officers were called to the home by residents in the area who heard the shots. The suspect was arrested at the scene and transported to jail.

Girl's body discovered

NEEDLES (AP) — Human bones and clothing found scattered over a wide area here have been identified as the remains of a 16-year-old girl who had been missing since Nov. 20, 1974.

Police Chief James Maddox said Monday the remains, found over the weekend by a woman collecting aluminum cans, included portions of a spinal column and a fractured skull.

The remnants were strewn over a five-acre area, leading authorities to believe that animals had uncovered the dead body.

SATINA SMITH

LOUISE PAVEY

Hospital dieticians

Satina Smith, director of dietary at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for 17 years, has resigned to take a similar post in Connecticut.

She will be replaced by Louise Pavey, administrative dietician at the hospital since 1970.

Miss Smith was honored at a surprise party attended by more than 200 coworkers in the hospital's Pitzer Auditorium. She was presented a plaque by Robert Burwell, administrator, during the party.

A graduate of the New York Institute of Dietetics in New York City, Miss Smith interned at Lawrence Memorial Hospital, New London, Conn. She is returning to the East to become food service director at Sea Side Regional Center, a residential center for 200 mentally retarded youngsters.

Miss Smith served as a judge for the Progress Bulletin Cookbook Contest and was instrumental in the establishement of the Pomona Meals on Wheels.

Mrs. Pavey is a graduate of Cal Poly Pomona with a degree in food and nutrition. She started working at PVCH while completing her education.

St. Lucy's Priory registration

The first day of school and registration will be Sept. 7, at St. Lucy's Priory High School in Glendora, according to Sister Francita, principal.

Since this year's enrollment is expected to be the largest in the school's history, Sister Francita said registration will be staggered to insure speedy processing.

Seniors will register from 8:30 to 10 a.m.; juniors from 10 to 11:30 a.m.; sophomores from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and freshmen, from 1 to 3 p.m.

Freshmen and sophomores will report for classes on Sept. 8 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

All students will report for classes on Sept. 9 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

A full-day scheduling will begin Sept. 13.

"Attendance on these days is very important," said Sister Francita, "since teachers will introduce new materials, outline the basic requirements for the year and familiarize themselves with their new students."

Glendora road improvements

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors has authorized resurfacing of roadway pavement at three locations in Glendora.

They are Forestdale Avenue from Lochleven Street to Alosta Avenue, Invergarry Street from 190 feet west of Forestdale Avenue to its easterly terminus, and Leeside Street and Haber Avenue from Forestdale Avenue to their easterly termini.

Authority also was granted for construction of sidewalk and driveway aprons on the north side of Petunia Street from Lone Hll Avenue to 520 feet east of Glengrove Avenue.

Parkway trees interfering with the project will be removed and replaced with new trees as requested by property owners.

The street projects will improve safety conditions for children walking to Sutherland Elementary School.

Cite Cub Scouts

Six members of Cub Scout Pack 328 in Chino received awards at their August meeting in Featherly Park.

They are Jimmy Stewart, Tim Amers, Neil Cobb, David Chandler, Shawn Lindstrom and Mike Bezayiff.

Muscular Dystrophy benefactor

The Hickory Farms of Ohio store in the Montclair Plaza will support the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon benefiting the Muscular Dystrophy Association by donating a part of customers' purchase price of Beef Stick to the benefit.

From Monday through Sept. 7, Beef Stick summer sausage will be sold at reduced prices and for every pound sold, Hickory Farms will donate 20 cents to the television marathon for MD research.

Store owner Harry Hyde said customers across the country will be greeted at Hickory Farm stores with a slogan urging them to participate in the benefit.

The telethon starts Sept. 5 at 5 p.m. and continues for 24 hours. It will be seen locally on Channel 11.

Rhodesian envoy's lonely life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Of the dozens of former British colonies, only two have ever unilaterally declared their independence from the British Crown: the United States and Rhodesia.

This historical affinity, combined with a shared antipathy for Communism, might seem to be a promising basis for close U.S. friendship with Rhodesia. Instead, the United States has gone to great lengths to avoid even the appearance of recognizing the legitimacy of Rhodesia's 11-year-old rebel government.

Kenneth Towsey is an authority on just how far the United States has gone in keeping its diplomatic distance from the Salisbury regime. Towsey, a 56-year-old British-born career diplomat, is Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's man in Washington.

From outward appearances, Towsey seems no different from other diplomats. He looks and talks like one and he operates out of a red brick building in the Embassy Row section of Washington.

Under normal circumstances, he would be entitled to deferential treatment by his diplomat neighbors. Of the 130 or so chiefs of diplomatic missions in the city, only two, the ambassadors of Nicaragua and the Soviet Union, have served longer than Towsey.

But his assignment is a lonely one. He does not take part in the diplomatic social whirl and, except for occasional contacts with the South African embassy, he has no relationship of any kind with any other foreign mission here.

Normally, Rhodesians are permitted in this country only for humanitarian or educational reasons, but an exception was made for Towsey, who has been a Rhodesian citizen for more than three decades.

He carries out his duties as a registered foreign agent.

His job has its perils. About five years ago, a bomb went off in front of the Rhodesian mission so Towsey takes the precaution of not putting a name tag on the building.

Towsey, who first arrived here in 1964 and travels home once a year on consultation, has had no substantive contact with the State Department since Rhodesia broke with Great Britain in November 1965.

He devotes most of his time to speechmaking, answering correspondence, disseminating literature and — perhaps most important of all — maintaining links with friendly U.S. Senators and congressmen.

Rhodesia may be the only country in the world with which the United States has no diplomatic contact. Washington maintains some sort of communication with old adversaries such as Cuba, Vietnam and North Korea — just about every nation except Rhodesia.

In an interview, Towsey said he finds American aloofness toward Rhodesia extraordinary. "I would have thought if they wanted to make policy in our area at least they should acknowledge the situation to the extent of recognizing that Mr. Smith is the government in power," he said.

Towsey manages to maintain at least the appearance of optimism notwithstanding the hostility to his government not only from within his country but from virtually all foreign countries regardless of ideology. No nation, not even South Africa, has recognized the Smith government.

Towsey takes comfort from a recent poll suggesting that 66 per cent of the American public favors a hands-off American policy toward Rhodesia, while only 18 per cent advocate the current hard-line stand.

2 Upland men hurt

Two Upland men were slightly injured Saturday night in a head-on accident at Ninth Street and 12th Avenue in Upland, police reported.

Arthur Burman, 79, of 156 N. 13th Ave., Upland, the driver of one of the vehicles, was treated and released from San Antonio Community Hospital with minor injuries. The driver of the second car, Juan Francisco Alvarado, 28, of 156½ N. 10th Ave., Upland, was treated for minor injuries at Ontario Community Hospital and later released.

Liquor bottles get new look—metric

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans are going to have to get used to reading the fine print on liquor bottles.

Government regulations involving the size of the containers and the stuff that's in them could cause some initial confusion for consumers who spend almost $30 billion a year on alcoholic beverages.

The first thing to watch for, starting in October, is liquor in metric size bottles. It's part of a 2½-year program at the end of which all distilled-spirits will be sold in six standard metric sizes.

Next, on Jan. 1, 1978 — a little more than a year away — you will start seeing ingredient lists on the labels of all domestic and imported alcoholic beverages.

For the moment, metric and nonmetric will coexist, with both sizes on the shelves. Labels used on metric bottles will have to include the nonmetric equivalent and knowing the difference in size could save consumers money. After Jan. 1, 1980, when the non-metric sizes are eliminated, the labels will include metric measures only.

Almanac

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 31st, the 244th day of 1976. There are 122 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1954, Hurricane Carol hit the United States, killing 68 persons and causing many millions of dollars in damage.

On this date:

In 1290, Jews were exiled from England by a proclamation of King Edward I.

In 1654, the Rhode Island General Assembly banned the sale of liquor to Indians.

In 1903, a Packard car reached New York after a 52-day trip from San Francisco, becoming the first automobile to cross the continent under its own power.

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a neutrality act prohibiting the export of U.S. arms to belligerents.

In 1944, German forces defeated the Russians in the World War II battle of Tannenberg in Poland.

In 1962, it was disclosed that U.S. Navy planes flying a training mission near Cuba were fired on by two Cuban naval vessels.

Ten years ago: Russia ordered the U.S. Embassy in Moscow to halt the distribution of the Russian language edition of the Warren Commission report on the assassination of President Kennedy, claiming it slandered the Soviet people.

Five years ago: Chief Justice Warren Burger ruled out a new request for a delay in school integration.

One year ago: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger announced that Egypt and Israel were in agreement on the text of a Sinai pact.

Today's birthdays: Arthur Godfrey of radio and television is 73 years old. Writer William Saroyan is 68.

Thought for today: Education doesn't change life much. It just lifts trouble to a higher plane of regard — poet Robert Frost.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago, many British officers mocked the fighting abilities of Americans in the battle of Long Island, but they had high praise for the skill of the American withdrawal.

SPEECHLESS, FOR ONCE — A parakeet named Cheerie waits in Irwin Baranov's home in San Diego for his friend, Bunny Kid, to finish dinner. The bird keeps up a constant stream of talk, but nobody talks to a rabbit while it's eating.

Talking parakeet a bird with a brain

SAN DIEGO (AP) - "You can say that, Bunny Kid," says the parakeet named Cheerie. But, what Cheerie can't understand is that Bunny Kid, his white rabbit playmate, can't talk like Cheerie can.

"There he goes," commented Cheerie as the rabbit bolted across the back porch of the home of Irwin and Ilana Baranov.

A newspaper photographer visited the Baranovs to see the rabbit that refuses to talk and the bird that won't stop.

"Hi there," he was greeted by Cheerie.

"When are you going to work today?

"What time are you going?"

The 2-year-old parakeet is tan and white with two round blue marks over his beak. In the kitchen he noticed Mrs. Baranov having trouble Sunday. Asked Cheerie: "What's your problem?"

Is it just talk from a bird brain? Mrs. Baranov doesn't think so.

As she started down the stains, she was asked by Cheerie:

"Where are you going?"

"Downstairs."

"Okay."

In hospitals

Chemical said cause of blasts

ATLANTA (AP) — A worldwide warning has been issued on use of a chemical that may have caused explosions in five medical institutions by reacting with pipes in the plumbing system.

The Center for Disease Control and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health said they sent warnings to 15,000 hospitals and plumbing and trade associations.

The warnings identified a chemical reagent, sodium azide, as the possible cause of blasts that have rocked three hospitals in the Los Angeles area and clinics in Washington, D.C., and Pennsylvania. The CDC said some injuries, but no deaths, have resulted.

Sodium azide is injected into the blood to activate electronic blood-cell counters. Once tests are complete, the usual procedure has been to discard the blood — containing the sodium azide — into the hospital plumbing system.

The CDC said it believed the sodium azide reacted with lead, brass, copper or solder in the pipes and gradually formed lead or copper azide, both highly explosive substances. In some cases, the actual blasts may have occurred when plumbers or other maintenance workers, unaware of the danger, attempted to repair the pipes with metal instruments.

Dr. Roscoe Moore of the safety institute said that Coulter Electronics, Inc., the Florida-based firm that manufactures about 90 per cent of the bloodcell counters used in hospitals and clinics in the country, had notified its customers of the potential danger.

"We feel certain that most of the urban centers were notified, but we're concerned about the rural areas, and the overseas areas," he said.

Moore said that in at least one case, warning signs were posted. "But the plumbers came in and didn't see the signs or didn't know what they were for and an explosion resulted," he said.

"We're concerned that there have been explosions that were not attributed to sodium azide simply because hospital officials didn't know of its existence," he added.

Coulter and the CDC have developed a decontamination procedure for pipes containing the sodium azide. It involves a chemical mixed with water to flush drainage systems.

Coulter has also developed another reagent which does not use sodium azide for its blood counter.

Austria denies jet deal with Israel is clinched

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Austrian Defense Ministry has denied reports that Israel Aircraft Industry (IAI) has clinched a deal to sell 24 Kfir jet fighters to Austria.

Israeli industry sources reported the alleged deal in Tel Aviv Tuesday. It was said to be worth $200 million.

"Such reports are without basis at the present time," a ministry statement said here.

Sources here said there was no doubt the Austrian air force needs interceptor planes, but a decision on buying them would have to be made by Chancellor Bruno Kreisky.

Kreisky said recently he would have to be convinced the purchase was vitally necessary, and the Israeli bid would have to be compared with one from Sweden. Kreisky is vacationing in Italy and could not be reached for comment.

The Tel Aviv report also said Austrian Defense Minister Ferdinand Luetgendorf would go to Israel soon "to work out details of the deal." Sources here said Luetgendorf's visit has been scheduled for some time, and he was expected to look at the Israeli fighter while there.

The plane's manufacturers' say it is the combat equal of European-built fighters, but at $4.5 million each it costs 25 per cent less than its cheapest competitor, the French-built Mirage F1.

The Kfir flies at 2.3 times the speed of sound with a combat ceiling of 50,000 feet. Foreign reports say a prototype was flown in the 1973 Mideast war, when Israel claimed a kill ratio of 55-1 in dogfights with Arab-flown planes.

19 missing

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — A boat with 25 passengers aboard capsized in huge waves at the mouth of the Davao River in the southern Philippines, the Philippines News Agency said today. Nineteen persons were missing and feared drowned, it said.

The report said navy frogmen and local volunteer divers were searching for the victims, who were returning home Sunday when the boat capsized.

Betty Ford gives views

Tough campaign ahead

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Betty Ford predicts a "very tough campaign" between her husband and Jimmy Carter, in which President Ford's pardon of Richard M. Nixon will be made an issue by the Democrats.

She said she was "quite surprised" by her husband's selection of Sen. Bob Dole as his running mate and would have liked to have seen Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller sharing the ticket.

Ford's pardon of his White House predecessor for Watergate crimes is being injected into the campaign by the "very subtle way" Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, keep saying that they're "not going to mention the Nixon pardon," the First Lady said.

Asked whether she thought that was dirty pool, she said, "Well, I think it's bringing up the pardon."

Mrs. Ford called the Democratic ticket a "strange combination."

"You have Carter supposedly a Southern Baptist conservative and Mondale as certainly about as extreme the other way as we have in Congress," she said in an interview during a vacation stay here.

She said they have "many weak points," but she declined to spell them out.

"Mainly, I think the President has a great advantage in his knowledge of the situation, having not only been in the leadership (of Congress) for so many years, but also having to take over the presidency for two years," the First Lady said.

While laughingly describing her husband's ability as a debater in early political life as "pretty sad," Mrs. Ford said she was highly in favor of televised Ford-Carter debates because it is one of the best ways of getting the issues before the American people.

Mrs. Ford predicts her husband will win the Nov. 2 election because he's "the best equipped."

But, if he doesn't, she said, "I won't be brokenhearted" because "he'll go back to law practice and I'll win either way ... We'll be able to see more of each other, do more things together."

Despite recent flareups of neck and shoulder pains from chronic osteoarthritis, Mrs. Ford said she plans to campaign for Ford "as his wife" and not on the issues.

She will start next weekend with an overnight trip to Chicago to attend a Lithuanian-American bicentennial festival on Saturday and visit the black Shiloh Baptist Church in Waukegan, Ill., on Sunday.

Mrs. Ford pulled back some from her reputation for outspokenness, saying, "There's no reason I have to answer a question just because they push me into it."

Reminded that she always has answered questions frankly, ranging from pre-marital sex and abortion to marijuana, she replied: "Probably too often."

She said Ford has "never stepped on my toes" about her frank views.

Mrs. Ford says she isn't consulted by her husband on political strategy or policy and was "quite surprised" by the choice of Kansas Sen. Dole as his running mate.

She said he was "one of my favorite choices," but that "I would have liked to have Vice President Rockefeller run again." She said Rockefeller had done an "excellent job" and the fact he isn't running doesn't mean "we've seen the end of him, because he's dedicated to community service."

Promising to continue her fight for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and to get a woman on the Supreme Court, Mrs. Ford said she sympathized with Mrs. Dole's dilemma about deciding whether to leave her seat on the Federal Trade Commission to campaign for her husband.

"There's never been a situation such as this before," and "women are interested in her staying on," Mrs. Ford said of Elizabeth Dole. "The attorneys will have to look into it."

In what was one of her longest interviews as First Lady, Mrs. Ford didn't skirt any of the issues:

—No blanket pardons for Vietnam draft evaders or deserters, although she favors finding a way to get them back into American society. Describing herself as "more of a hawk" than her husband on Vietnam, she said those who evaded wartime service "walked out on a situation and left a lot of other fellows to handle it."

—On abortion, Mrs. Ford seemed to be changing her view a bit. She reiterated that she was glad the Supreme Court decision brought the issue "out of the backwoods and put it into the hospitals." But she said she believes abortions should be performed only "when it is necessary," such as when a pregnant woman has been exposed to German measles. "I do not believe in abortion on demand."

—On religion, Mrs. Ford said there was a trend toward a return to old values. "Certainly in our family there is," she said, noting that son Michael is studying for the ministry. As for religion in the campaign, injected by Carter's publicly pronounced views, she said she didn't think "the President would be campaigning in churches particularly."

"I mean true religion that comes from within that you actually feel and know. But it's not something that you just go to church for because it's the right place to be seen."

She said she hoped her visit to the black Baptist Church in Illinois next weekend would not be considered political, "because that request for her appearance has been in for so long."

Defending Ford as a compassionate man, despite his vetoes of social legislation, Mrs. Ford said. "He has more compassion . . . than anyone I can think of, because he came up the hard way himself and he knows what it means. He worked his way through high school."

She said Ford's vetoes stemmed from his belief that states rather than Washington should handle more of these social problems.

Mrs. Ford talked of some of her own views of White House living. She said she was joking when she suggested first ladies should get a salary. But she reported she has had to "at least triple" what she spent on clothes since she came to the White House.

She said she wears her clothes "many times" but keeps them all tagged in her closet with the date and event where she wore them last so she won't wear the same thing for the same groups of people.

Having pursued careers as a dancer and fashion designer, Mrs. Ford said the White House "did provide a stage and gave me an opportunity to go into a carrer that I never expected to have." She said once her four children were grown she had decided to "do community service work" because she's "not one to sit around and play bridge."

The White House has given her a new identity, she notes, "the opportunity to meet many people and become involved in projects" she's interested in, such as retarded persons, underprivileged children and the performing arts.

But, she says, it also is sometimes a very lonely life in the White House, "because you're very busy and you're cut off from all your friends because you don't have the time."

Mrs. Ford said she has been "very surprised" at her own popularity, which at times has soared above the President's in the polls. She explained it by saying, "I think our family comes across as a very natural, pure, mid-American family with no pretenses." And she said she has been determined just to be herself.

She said the family doesn't get angry about criticism and reports of Ford's stumbles because "they know he's an excellent athlete. I've seen more people bump their heads on helicopters than him," Mrs. Ford said.

Nudity a new family game?

PARIS (NEA) — Nudity, for the French, is mainly an attitude of mind.

The unprecedented heat wave (plus 90 degrees) which has swept France and most of Europe unremittingly since June, has not resulted in an eruption of streakers. Parisians and tourists can be seen every day sitting on the edge of the fountains on the Champs Elysees and other public places rippling their feet in the lukewarm water. But the eyebrow lifting which greeted bared bosoms on beaches and in public swimming pools is a thing of the past. Complete nakedness on the stage or in movies is something the French can take, and mostly dismiss, with a shrug.

Far more significant, according to a recent poll, is a minor revolution which has occurred in French families in the past decade; 27 per cent of French parents admit they walk around the home completely naked in front of their children.

One out of approximately four may look like a small minority, yet it is significant. If only because it represents the young middle class section of the population, the greater majority of which are Parisians.

Who, among the under-25s today, can admit to having seen either or both parents in the buff?

According to psychosociologist Marc-Allain Descamps, "It is astonishing how total transformation has taken place in the space of a generation." He points out that in a relatively short time they have discovered a higher standard of living, have acquired creature comforts, have adapted to their new purchasing power and, in sum, to better living.

Every summer they crowd the beaches in search of the sun and a tanned body. Mini-swimsuits have dwindled today to the barest coverage.

Simultaneously, in reaction to too rigid parental discipline, the children of the World War II period who in turn have produced offspring of their own have endeavored to establish a new relationship. More natural, more tender, less remote.

Naturally, nudity in the bosom of the family has not swept France like a tidal wave. Nudist colonies have existed for years and, according to figures of the Naturist Federation of France, are frequented today by the executive (18 per cent) and middle classes (26 per cent). The blue-collar representation is a mere 9 per cent. The poll also revealed that 27 per cent women, as against 23 per cent men, have adopted the habit.

The new trend applies especially to young parents — 49 per cent aged between 21 and 34, whereas only 20 per cent of the 35 to 49 group follow the movement. It is also more prevalent among the higher income groups and liberal professions (49 per cent), with the numbers dropping to 41 per cent in the middle classes. There is definitely more resistance among workers (27 per cent), shopowners (25 per cent) and farmers (3 per cent). The more worldly Parisians lead with 41 per cent, followed by people living in towns of more than 100,000 inhabitants (30 per cent).

Walking around nude in the privacy of the home seems to present problems which do not apply elsewhere. Thus, the frontiers of nakedness on beaches are practically non-existent with children of all ages accustomed to the situation.

A psychologist explains that the young accept nudity far more naturally than adults. Teenagers, however, may be more reticent. Said Peter C. 14: "My father will often come in while I am taking a bath or shower. That I resent. I expect a certain respect from my parents."

Youngsters up to 17 questioned by pollsters admitted there were certain geographical boundaries in the home, i.e., the parents' bedroom, which the new freedom has not crossed.

Fiddle class slated

The Ontario Recreation Department and Chaffey College Adult Education will sponsor a class, "Country Fiddlin'" starting Sept. 23.

The class will be taught by Clyde Owens of the Chaffey High School District music department. His goal is to form a fidling band to perform for shut-ins, convalescent homes, service clubs and senior citizens groups.

The students will study the sources of fiddle music and perform tunes in their original form. Students should have some knowledge of the violin. Musicians who play the banjo or mandolin are invited to join the class.

Registration will be taken at the first class, to be held from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Chaffey High School music room.

MODERN WILLIAM TELL — Swiss magician Hans Moretti goes William Tell one better by shooting the apple on top of his own head in his act in Zurich. Moretti fires his crossbow at a target, which fires a second crossbow, which fires a third which fires the fourth which sends its arrow into the apple atop his head. The complicated stunt apparently works.

'Play It Again, Sam'

Playhouse offers Woody Allen play

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Woody Allen wrote — and performed in — "Play It Again, Sam," and Roger Allen, who takes the lead in the Claremont Playhouse production, offers an uncanny resemblance to the playwright in a high-keyed, hilarious presentation.

Like Woody, Roger is dynamic, responsive, popeyed, facile in face and voice, funny, volatile and hypertense, a bespectacled, Bronx Charlie Brown. His performance is a comic classic.

Roger's role, I must say, is a piece of cake. He surrounds himself with a baker's dozen of scantily-clad but otherwise attractive females that keep him (and them) popping pills from dawn till dark. His ex-wife, played by lissome Nancy Beatty, used to watch television while they made love — frequently changing channels with a remote control gadget.

Allen sets out in quest of a new woman — what he needs is a mother. He is aided by frequent appearances of his idol, Humphrey Bogart, played convincingly by Gary Scott. He is also assisted by his Best Friend, Dick (John David Roberts), a young lawyer on the rise, always telephoning his answering service to report his various localities, and Dick's wife, Linda, played by Marianne McKenna, a lovely, wistful creature who needs more than an answering service. Allen answers her ring.

In his search for "The Girl," Allen is filled with trepidation. ("The only bad break would be if she were a virgin — or a cop!") In a dream sequence, a voluptuous beauty says, "I want you, body and soul!" He replies, "Which do you want to start with?" He is not the world's greatest lover. One girl asks him, "What were you thinking of when we were making love?" and he replies, "Willie Mays!"

The cast is, you should excuse the expression, fleshed out with the spritely Nancy Dalzeil as Sharon; sexy Mary Neufeld as the dream Sharon; Susan Gilbert as Vanessa, a voluptuous creature who "wiped out an entire Yale fraternity in three hours"; Darlene Cease's exciting Gina, and a toothsome Debbie Wagstaff as Barbara. Like I say — how can Allen lose?

"Play It Again, Sam," is directed with aplomb and vigor by Jack Marlando. George Gizienski provides sophisticated sets and the very artful lighting that adds immensely to the production.

Claremont Playhouse is taking the pulse of the valley theater-going audience to find out what we want. The company started with "Butch and the Kid," a hokey musical, moved on to "Teahouse of the August Moon," ventured into nostalgia and nonsense with "Kiss and Tell," is now trying something a little more sophisticated and sexy. It's a first-rate comedy done with style by professionals.

Next on the calendar: "Stop the World, I Want To Get Off," opening Oct. 15.

"Play It Again, Sam," goes at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays.

OFF ON 'JOURNEY' — Actress Deborah Kerr, who has received six Academy Award nominations, will star with Charlton Heston in Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night" at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center Feb. 8-April 2. Most recently she has appeared in Los Angeles in "The Day After the Fair," "Seascape" and "Souvenir."

A Hollywood rarity: team lasts 25 years

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — In Hollywood, a partnership generally lasts as long as it takes to count the profits or disguise the losses.

Which is why the 25th anniversary of the independent production company of Levy-Gardner-Laven is an event worthy of note. Jules Levy, Arthur Gardner and Arnold Laven formed their company in 1951, and they're still at it.

The three met in the Army during World War II, when they served with a film producing outfit. They agreed that, after the war, they would try to start their own company.

They each gathered some professional experience, following their discharges, then got together in 1951 to set up shop. Their first movie was a $75,000 film called "Without Warning."

It got good reviews and they were so confident they would make millions that they turned down Howard Hughes' $150,000 offer for the film. This so angered Hughes that he threw a monkey-wrench into their distribution deals and they never did make those millions.

They made enough, however, to finance another movie, "Vice Squad," with Edward G. Robinson, and they were off. In the quarter-century the three have been in business, they've averaged a picture a year, plus more than 450 television episodes.

It was Levy-Gardner-Laven who made such hit TV series as The Rifleman and The Big Valley. But they're not doing any TV now, just features. They say the chances of turning a profit on TV today for an independent are so slim as to be unrealistic.

Their current feature release is "Gator," starring Burt Reynolds. And they've also made the last two John Wayne pictures.

So they're doing fine, even without TV. And they look forward to another 25 years.

Ken Murray's new book, "The Body Merchant," which is a biography of Earl Carroll, is attracting the attention of movie companies. Many think Carroll's life would make a fascinating film, and, of course, Murray agrees.

"Carroll's life had everything," Ken says. "It had humble beginnings, high adventure, drama, even a stretch in jail. Plus beautiful women and a lot of music."

Carroll, for those unfamiliar with the name, was a major Broadway producer of flashy revues, a big rival of Ziegfeld.)

Murray, the comedian-turned-writer, is now working on another project.

Sickle-cell cure may not be far off

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Researchers are close to creating synthetic blood protein which may speed them toward a cure for sickle-cell anemia and other blood disorders, a scientist said today.

Dr. Sherman Beychok said scientists at Columbia University in New York have learned how to take apart a molecule of human hemoglobin and put it back together again. He said that removes the major stumbling block to creation of man-made hemoglobin.

Hemoglobin is the basic respiratory unit of blood, the protein that carries oxygen from the lungs to body tissues.

He said scientists could learn more about blood disorders by duplicating the sickle-cell hemoglobin molecule, for example, and comparing it with synthetic molecules of healthy hemoglobin.

Beychok's findings were included in a report for presentation to the American Chemical Society today.

"What I look forward to evenually and not too far off is the actual synthesis and appearance of synthetic hemoglobin," he told a news conference Sunday. "It is entirely do-able now."

From synthesis, he said, it is just one more step to creation of a suitable carrier cell to house the hemoglobin molecule. Artificial hemoglobin could then be transfused into accident victims as a stopgap measure if supplies of donor blood run short.

"Of course one does not know the possible failures," Beychok said, "but I find it difficult to believe this could not be accomplished in 10 or 20 years. Perhaps less."

Beychok said scientists have long had the knowledge to create synthetic protein chains that would duplicate those in hemoglobin. But, he said, the Columbia research will enable them for the first time to bind the chains together with "heme," the other basic component of hemoglobin, without having the volatile protein chains fall apart.

Beychok stressed that artificial hemoglobin in its carrier cells could not replace whole blood transfusions or keep a trauma patient alive indefinitely unless it was replenished by transfusion or by the victim's own blood. Its use would be limited to temporarily enriching blood, increasing its oxygen-carrying capacity.

Hotel manager turns to priesthood

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — After 40 years of managing hotels and getting to know some of the world's most famous people, Charles T. Carey is entering another kind of service.

At 65, the lifelong bachelor will begin studies in Rome on Sept. 10 to become a Catholic priest.

Carey retired last year as executive director of corporate services for the Sheraton hotel chain and manager of the Sheraton Carlton in Washington.

"To enter the seminary was quite a decision to make but it's something I've always wanted to do," Carey said in an interview during a visit to his brother here over the weekend.

He said he didn't consider the priesthood far afield from his past experience, since clergymen and hotel managers both render service.

He previously managed the Biltmore in Santa Barbara, Calif., the Clift Hotel and Plaza in San Francisco, the William Penn Hotel in Pittsburgh, the Fontenelle in Omaha, the Sheraton Ritz in Minneapolis and the Sheraton St. Regis in New York.

Carey got his start in the hotel business as a representative of the Union Pacific Railroad, promoting its resort at Sun Valley, Idaho. There he made friends with Ernest Hemingway.

He also hosted and befriended artist Salvador Dali and his wife, who spent two or three months every year at the St. Regis. Carey said, "They always had the same suite. And they always brought their two pet ocelots with them.

"On one occasion, one of the ocelots got out of the room, walked along the ledge and jumped through the bathroom window of a very important person — a lady from Peru — who was taking a bath at the time."

He said there was some screaming, but no harm done.

Carey called the late Perle Mesta, onetime bastion of Washington society, "a very dear friend." She lived in the apartment above him in Washington.

"During her last illness," he said, "I told her I'd like to have a little party for her. I said I was thinking of having just a few people in. She said, "Would you mind having just a few more?"

He said she made the guest list and 75 persons attended, elbow-to-elbow in the apartment.

"Harry Truman was just great," Carey says, "as common as an old shoe."

Carey said the late President Lyndon Johnson had "an obsession about escalators. If he saw one, he would get on it, no matter whether it was headed for where he wanted to go or not."

Thousands fleeing Lebanon by boat

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Youssif Ayoub stood near the dock waiting for a ship to carry him away from the war that has shattered his country and his life.

"I feel like I'm losing something from inside me," he said, gesturing toward his wife, three sons and white-veiled mother. "This is my country. I have my mother here, my grandmother, my family."

Ayoub, 28, is heading for San Diego, Calif., where his brother is a college professor. He plans to look for work, then message his wife to join him with their sons.

Ayoub's decision to leave is one more drop in the drain of initiative and talent from Lebanon. Thousands of families are fleeing, disgusted and frightened after 17 months of civil war.

No one knows for sure how many have left. There is no government to count them. Travel agents in Sidon, the chief Moslem departure point 25 miles south of Beirut, estimate between 1,500 and 1,800 sail away every week, and that nearly half of them do not return.

Christian officials in Jounieh, the main Christian port 12 miles north of Beirut, estimate between 1,000 and 1,400 departures a week. They say about 40 per cent are taking up permanent residence abroad.

The emigrants settle around the world: France, the United States, Australia, Canada, Africa, Latin America and Arab countries. With them go the vigor and enterprise that made Lebanon the business center of the Middle East until it blew up in April 1975.

Cypriot officials say 15,000 have come to their small Mediterranean island alone, pushing up apartment rentals and jamming hotels.

The Syrian government says it has taken back more than half a million Syrians who used to work in Lebanon but fled after the fighting broke out. In addition, about 400,000 Lebanese have descended on Syria, along with more than 150,000 Palestinians from war-torn refugee camps in Lebanon, Damascus officials estimate.

President Hafez Assad has ordered his administration to care for the Lebanese. Schools are open to them. Hospitalization is free. The government says it provides about 300,000 with food and temporary housing at a cost of $1 million a day.

Those departing include workers, students, businessmen, doctors, lawyers — even gunmen who began the war with cries of revolution and a fight to the finish, but ended it for themselves with a quiet trip out and the chance to begin a new life.

A leftist militia commander who supervised the Hamra shopping district in the early part of the war has since emigrated to the conservative Persian Gulf sheikdom of Kuwait, where he is making good money as an airline steward.

"Not everyone here can carry arms and fight behind the barricades," said one young Christian asked about his impending departure for Europe. "I want to finish my studies."

The American University Hospital is reduced to half its normal staff of 100 doctors. About 50 of the hospital's doctors, mostly U.S.-trained, took off for the United States to wait out the war in safety.

Middle East Airlines, Lebanon's idle flag carrier, is quietly advising its employes to take jobs elsewhere and arranging employment for them with other airlines.

"I'll do any kind of work over in the United States," said Ayoub in a dockside interview. "The important thing is to work and to put my children into school."

Ayoub was an ambulance driver in Beirut. His job was secure despite the war, until Palestinian and leftist gunmen stole all the hospital's ambulances.

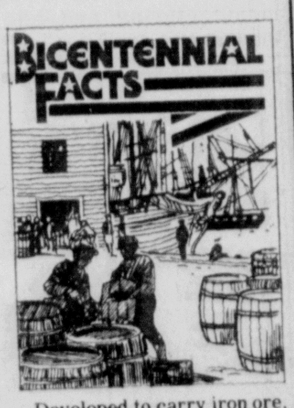
"We haven't been working for three months," he said. "If the situation here stays the same, I'm staying over there."

Military leaders in the Moslem sector of Lebanon have done nothing to hold back people like Ayoub. But Palestinians cannot leave the country without special permission from the guerrilla command.

One group of Palestinians tried to flee in a small boat. They were towed back to shore when the motor broke down. Guerrilla chief Yasir Arafat personally ordered their heads shaved and conscripted them for military training.

In the Christian sector, Lebanese travelers have to pay a $7 "war-effort" tax. There are no formal restrictions on who can leave, but the rightist Phalange party strongly discourages men of fighting age and those with special skills from emigrating.

"Young men particularly should not leave the country, because they are the basis of Lebanon and the new Lebanon is to be built on their shoulders," said a rightist port official at Jounieh. "The fatherland before everything."



Developed to carry iron ore, grain, whiskey, and other bulk freight between Philadelphia and the northern counties of New Jersey, Durham boats ranged between 40 and 60 feet in length, were 8 feet wide, and drew only 20 inches of water when fully loaded. The largest could carry 15 tons, and they could be sailed or poled. Washington used Durham boats in his attack on Trenton The World Almanac relates.

Pomona council nixes tax rate increase

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

City property tax rates totaling $2.495 per $100 of assessed valuation, the same level that has existed the last four years, were officially set by the Pomona City Council Monday night.

As expected, based on the positions taken by council members at a special meeting Monday morning, the 39-cent property tax rate increase approved in July was eliminated by the council.

The decision to roll back the tax rate increase was not without controversy, however, as Councilman Charles Bader vehemently objected to the fiscal strategy behind the move.

Specifically, Bader opposed the shifting of a quarter million dollars in federal revenue sharing funds into the budget.

"It's a blue print to financial disaster. I'm against it. We're following the very path that has led other communities to disaster," said Bader.

The subject of eliminating general revenue sharing funds from the budget has been a pet issue with Bader for many months and he was obviously angered Monday night upon discovering more such funds in the budget.

"We voted in June to decrease our dependency on the revenue sharing. Now I see a plan that continues that dependency through 1978-79. I see a lot of back-pedaling and equivocating. Don't try and fool the voter," he charged.

Councilman Adrian Wright said he agreed with Bader, but Wright nevertheless joined Mayor Ray Lepire and Council members Georgia Grove and Benjamin Ochoa in approving the rollback of the tax increase, the fiscal strategy behind it, and City Administrator Jerrold Gonce's three-year plan for cutting revenue sharing funds out of the budget.

That plan calls for the $1 million in revenue sharing funds in this year's budget to be reduced by one-third each year through 1978-79, after which revenue sharing funds would be used only for capital purchases.

Revenue sharing funds pose a very real dilemma for the city because of their political nature.

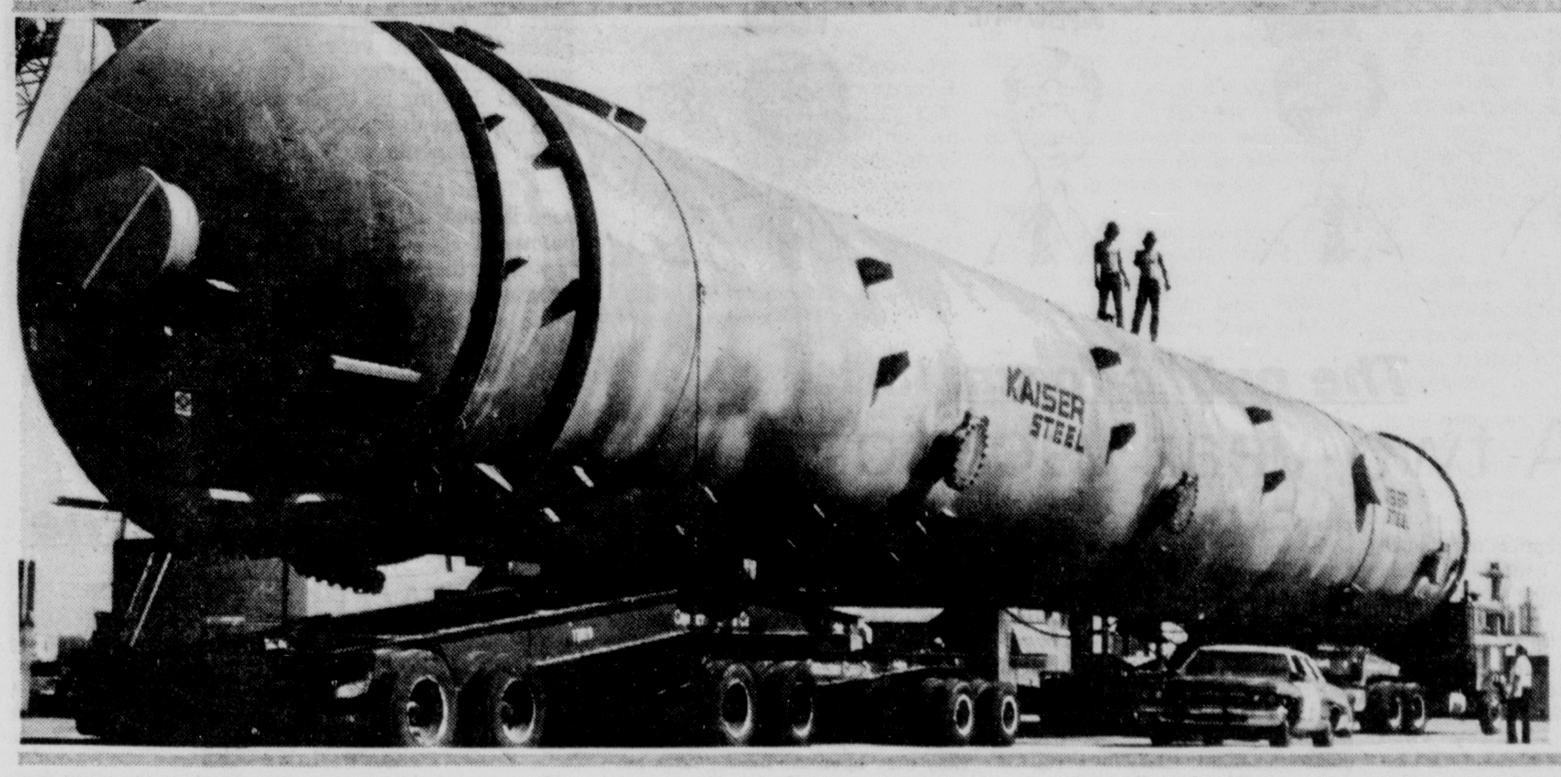
Funded by an act of Congress, they may also be cancelled by an act of Congress, which Bader predicts is bound to happen in time.

But to eliminate the use of the funds this year, as Bader has suggested, would require huge increases in local taxes or equally huge layoffs of city personnel.

Neither choice appears palatable to a majority of the council.

"People will be happier not to have their taxes raised and we can work out the problem in the next two years," said Wright.

A breakdown of the total tax rate approved by the council shows: 95 cents to the general fund; 47.1 cents to the retirement program; 43.8 cents for parks; 13.5 cents for recreation; 35.6 cents to the library; and 14.5 cents to pay off city bonds.



Moving huge vessel a tricky maneuver

A massive 109-ton steel pressure vessel was shipped this week from Kaiser Steel in Fontana to Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp.'s Trona, Calif. facilities.

Kaiser's plate fabricating plant made the unit for the Parsons-Jurden Division of the Ralph M. Parsons Co. of Pasadena, the general contractor for engineering and construction of a $175 million expansion of the Kerr-McGee plant.

Designed by Parsons-Jurden, the vessel is one of two carbon dioxide absorbers Kaiser has manufactured under the contract. They will be used for production of soda ash, a basic ingredient in glass manufacturing.

The vessel, fabricated from eleven-sixteenths-inch steel plate, measures 14½ feet in diameter and is 133 feet long.

A South Gate cargo firm was commissioned by Kaiser to truck the huge vessel to Trona. Because of its size and weight, a permit was required from the State Division of Highways, which specified special routing for the 150-mile trip.

The trip will be repeated in the next two weeks when a second vessel is shipped.

Tax rate down, but taxes up in Claremont

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council at a special meeting Monday night adopted a final budget of $4.7 million, $700,000 higher than in 1975-76.

The council chopped $22,000 out of budget requests and dropped the general fund rate tax seven cents below the approved tentative budget to $1 5252 per $100 assessed valuation

The approved final rate is one cent below the general fund rate for 1975-76.

But City Manager Norman King warned the council that chopping $22,000 in one-time items from the budget means deficit spending.

"Because we have cut these one-time items, we'll go into 1977-78 in deficit spending," he cautioned.

Taken out of budget requests were such items as $3,800 to buy a strip of land 16 feet wide and 370 feet long next to the city yard; $13,000 for a Comprehensive Employment Training Act fund; and $2,800 for the Indian Hill elm tree maintenance and replacement fund.

On the elm tree item, the council decided that it would pay up to $300 for each replacement tree with citizens being urged to donate $100 for each tree.

King had suggested dropping the tax rate by 4.16 cents per $100 assessed valuation because the city is projecting receiving an additional $66,000 in revenues above what was included in the tentative budget.

But Councilman Frank Hungerford said he would like to cut the proposed tax rate by at least seven cents.

Other council members agreed, and each cited his item for cutting.

As to cutting out capital outlay items, such as a multipurpose van for the Parks and Recreation Department, King said it would be more difficult to buy the next year because of other items in a seven-year capital outlay program.

Of the $4.7 million budget, approximately 47 percent or $2,235,000 will go for employes' salaries and fringe benefits.

Deputy City Manager Paul Brotzman explained that the budget is $700,000 higher than last year because of such items as $282,000 in federal money to pay for moving railroad tracks and resultant improvement of First Street between College Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard.

Brotzman explained that inflationary costs account for most of the remainder, such as $120,000 increase in liability insurance, workers' compensation insurance, and Public Employes Retirement System.

Brotzman said that the average increase in assessed valuation in Claremont this year is 31 per cent, so the one-cent decrease over last year will not alleviate the additional tax burden.

Toddler drowns at grandparents' home

A 19-month-old Diamond Bar child drowned in his grandparents' swimming pool in Rowland Heights Monday afternoon, the second local person to drown in the last two days.

The victim was Michah Carsey who was discovered in the swimming pool at 2346 S. Agostino Drive, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Carsey.

Sheriff's deputies reported that the victim apparently climbed from a playpen, went through the garage and into the backyard where he fell into the pool. He was found by his mother and rushed to Queen of the Valley Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The earlier drowning locally occurred Sunday when Pomonan Manuel Vazquez, 21, failed in his attempt to swim across San Dimas Canyon Dam.

$710,000 federal grant

School building loan to Chino

The Chino Unified School District has received a $710,000 loan for classroom construction from the federal Farmers Home Administration.

School officials had asked the federal agency in May to buy $710,000 in bonds earlier authorized by voters, according to Al Searfoss, the district's assistant superintendent for business.

The bonds had been authorized at 5 per cent interest, and because of the current market, they could not be sold to the usual investment firms, said Searfoss. Voters rejected an attempt by the district to raise the interest to 7 per cent in March 1975.

The loan, announced by Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., will be used to build 11 classrooms at Los Serranos Elementary School. It will be repaid in 25 years at 5 per cent interest.

School officials also will use $238,000 in bonds sold March 22 toward construction of the Los Serranos additions.

Searfoss said a construction contract is expected to be awarded on Sept. 28, and building should get under way soon after.

Reelected

Boice Stevens has been reelected chairman of the San Dimas Senior Citizen Commission for the 1976-77 year.

Gerlad Westlake will serve as vice chairman, Carolyn St. Claire as secretary and Lorraine Snyder, assistant secretary.

The commission, which coordinates senior citizen activities and services, meets at 7:30 p.m. the first Wednesday of each month. Meetings are in City Hall.

MD donation

Peter Cheung, owner and president of the Islander Terrace Restaurant in Montclair, will donate 100 per cent of the proceeds from lunches and dinners sold Friday to the national Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Cheung will donate the total costs of meals sold at the restaurant, 4620 Holt Blvd., from 11:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. The dinner will be a sit-down Polynesian gourmet banquet for the donation of $4 per person.

Special contract huddle to convene

The Claremont school board will hold a special meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the district Education Center to approve a master contract for district classified employes, and to approve a salary schedule for confidential classified employes.

Representatives of the district and Chapter 200 of California School Employes Association have been negotiating behind closed doors.

Lancaster to address GOP valley women

Assemblyman William Lancaster, R-62nd Dist., will give a "Sacramento Report" at a Sept. 9 luncheon meeting of the Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club Federated.

It was erroneously reported in the Progress Bulletin on Sunday that this meeting would be held Thursday.

Discover body in car

The body of a 21-year-old Temple City man was found in his station wagon parked in the San Gabriel Mountains north of Azusa Monday.

Sheriff's investigators said he apparently died as the result of a drug overdose. Two empty pill containers were found in the vehicle, they said.

The body of Ronald Hugh Cameron was discovered early Monday afternoon by a U.S. Forest Service ranger. It was lying in the rear of Cameron's station wagon parked in a turnout along East Fork Road about half a mile east of Highway 39.

The body was taken to the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office.

Crash victim improves

A 30-year-old Ontario man was injured Sunday afternoon when a pickup truck crashed into the rear of his car at Fourth Street and Virgina Avenue in Ontario.

Fortino Nunez of 1129 N. Virgina was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Ontario Community Hospital with injuries suffered in the accident.

Police said a pickup truck driven by Alvin Gale Slate, 38, of 1202 E. Sixth St., Ontario, struck the rear end of Nunez's car. Slate was not injured. Police said that Nunez had stopped to make a left turn.

Set development fund hearings

Upland

A public meeting is scheduled Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Upland City Hall so that residents may offer suggestions for the use of more than $400,000 in community development grant funds the city hopes to receive in fiscal 1977-78.

The meeting is the first of three planned by the city in preparation for applying for the funds. This is the third and final year for the program authorized by Congress under the federal Housing and Urban Development Act of 1974.

Before qualifying for the funds, the city needs the approval of a joint powers agreement by the Upland City Council.

During the first year, Upland received $130,000 and during the present fiscal year, the city was awarded $282,000. The money allows for the acquisition of park sites, senior citizen facilities, traffice control programs, housing rehabilitation and other civic projects.

One of the projects still pending under the grant funds is the establishment of a senior citizen center in the city.

The Housing and Community Development Citizen Participation Advisory Committee, with Loren Sanchez as chairman, will meet at 4 p.m. Sept. 9 to discuss results of the previous public meeting as well as staff recommendations on specific projects.

Montclair

The Community Development Department of Montclair will hold its second and final meeting at 7 tonight for suggestions on the priorities for expenditures of federal Community Development Act funds.

The meeting will be held in the Council Chambers at City Hall to consider the priorities for the third year of funding for the federal legislation.

The staff will review with those attending the administration and operation; housing conservation and rehabilitation; housing redevelopment, purchase and refurbishing of deteriorated housing within the city; and implementation of Central Avenue development program.

Tempe man wins murder trial delay

The murder trial of a young Tempe, Ariz., man, charged in the Oct. 20 slaying in Diamond Bar of a Cal Poly professor, has been continued to Sept. 9.

The continuance, granted by Pomona Superior Court Judge Howard D. McClain, is the latest in a series of postponements in the case. The reason for the latest continuance was that the young man's lawyer currently is engaged in another murder trial.

Richard Sinnott, 18, is accused of beating to death and robbing William C. Warner, 53, in Warner's apartment. Sinnott, then 17, was arrested several days after the slaying and returned from Arizona to stand trial.

At first he was charged as a juvenile but was ruled unfit for such consideration and ordered tried as an adult. He is being held in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Diamond Bar's MAC would be county 1st

16 file for 4 positions

Sixteen Diamond Bar residents will be on the Nov. 2 ballot as candidates for four seats on a Municipal Advisory Council (MAC).

That ballot will include a proposition asking Diamond Bar residents whether they wish to be represented before the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors by MAC.

If the decision is affirmative, four of the 16 candidates simultaneously will be elected to MAC in staggered terms. Candidates filed nomination papers before Friday's deadline.

Two top vote getters sould serve four years. The two candidates receiving third and fourth highest number of votes would serve two years.

A fifth MAC member would be appointed to a four-year-term by the Board of Supervisors.

If voters approve formation of Diamond Bar MAC, it will be the first such body formed in Los Angeles County. Supporters claim it will give the 20,000 residents of the sprawling unincorporated area official representation before the Board of Supervisors, give the community an alternative to city government and provide for it an identity and recognizable borders.

The election will culminate several years' work by the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association which won authorization from the Board of Supervisors for the election.

Candidates officially in the race for MAC seats, according to the Los Angeles County Register-Recorder's Office, are Robert J. Rollheiser, sales operation manager; Anthony Rentz, student; Arthur Ragazzi, senior administrative analyst; George Martin Jr., college instructor.

Lorraine Hildebrand, realtor associate; Al Durant, tax consultant; Ronald G. Foerstel, contractor; Charles Hall, businessman; Brenda P. Engdahl, school instructional aide; Joe Larutta, insurance agent.

Virginia Lineberger, utility service representative; Bon Newsom, merchant; Ken Pine, business executive; George D. Resh, senior marketing representative; Ted W. Staley, marketing manager; and Donald Stokes, insurance agent.

Zero-based budgeting

Once breathed into life, federal programs, like Topsy, just grow. And grow. And grow.

In the past 10 years, federal spending has gone up 180 per cent, but revenues are up only 130 per cent. Annual deficits have risen from $3.6 billion in fiscal 1966 to nearly $70 billion in fiscal 1976. The national debt currently amounts to more than $9,000 for every household in the country.

There are all kind of reasons for this, not least of which is the public's demand for more and more government services (but not higher taxes to pay for them).

But another, which has been receiving increasing attention, is the fact that in preparing the vastly complicated federal budget every year, the most Congress is usually able to do is to focus on the increases invariably requested by the government's multitude of departments and agencies. Rarely does it demand justification of a program itself, or inquire whether it is serving its intended purpose, or whether its results have been worth its costs, or whether it is overlapped or duplicated by some other program.

Lately, however, a lot of people have been talking about administering an antigrowth hormone to our federal Topsy in the form of something called "zero-based budgeting." Under zero-based budgeting, Congress would be required to examine all aspects of a spending program from scratch, not merely requested increases.

The idea is not a new one, having been pioneered in private industry and first proposed to Congress back in 1972 by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. But now it would be embodied in a law, known as the Government Economy and Spending Reform Act of 1976, being pushed by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., and co-sponsored by some 50 other senators. In the House, more than 100 members are sponsoring similar legislation.

Like the perennial subject of tax reform, zero-based budgeting may be a will of the wisp. Its supporters agree that a thorough-going review of federal spending would be a massive job, but say it could be done on a staggered basis over a period of several years, as has been proposed in the not-unrelated matter of reforming the government's regulatory agencies.

Also, the process would be aided by a self-destruct mechanism built into the plan. That is, spending programs would automatically terminate at a given date unless Congress, after review, decided otherwise.

Call it zero-based budgeting or a sunset law on federal spending, something has to be done lest Topsy eat us out of house and home.

Red tape relief

The words "government" and "red tape" are used together so often that most people have come to believe that, like love and marrige or a horse and carriage, you can't have one without the other. It is encouraging to see evidence that this is not necessarily so.

Take the nifty way the Federal Communications Commission is handling applications for Citizens Band radio licenses.

The licenses — cards approximately five by eight inches in size — come already enclosed in envelopes. All a clerk has to do is type the license number and the name and address of the licensee on the outside. Strategically placed carbons, also already inside the envelope, transfer the info to the license and at the same time to a change-of-address card, which the radio operator keeps for possible future use.

Even though the agency is being deluged with CB license applications at the rate of about half a million a month, people are receiving their licenses in less than three weeks. Would that red tape in the private sector — getting service on a subscription to a magazine, for instance — were handled as efficiently.

A two-year vacation?

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my thanks to Congressional candidate Louis Brutocao for exposing Congress for what it really is . . . a place where greedy people go to gouge the taxpayer. Freshmen like Jim Lloyd waltzed into office promising to clean house in Washington. They haven't. Instead they vote themselves secret pay raises and assorted goodies which have turned a term in Congress into a two-year vacation at public expense.

Ms. George's letter of August 27 complains that Brutocao literature hits below the belt. Not so. Jim Lloyd knew that the people wouldn't approve a pay hike for Congressmen, so he enlisted in the effort to sneak the bill through both Houses before we got wind of it. What's more, he voted for automatic salary boosts to spare him the embarrassment of getting caught voting himself another pay-raise.

As for the other Congressional fringe benefits which Ms. George contends are necessary for Congress to represent us, I hardly see how free haircuts, free shoe shines and free plants from the botanical gardens contribute to Jim Lloyd's efforts to represent this district.

If our Congressman thinks he needs a pay raise let him come to us and ask for it. After all, we pay his salary. And, incidentally, talk of balancing the national budget and cutting the fat in government doesn't wash with me when I hear of the blubber hanging around our Congressman's waist.

Thank you Mr. Brutocao for foiling Congress' effort to sneak pay raises and other special benefits by us. They may have the money now, but they will pay for it in November. Brutocao has my vote as long as he promises not to take a plunge into that gleaming Congressional swimming pool.

White House blocks no-fault

WASHINGTON — The White House and the trial lawyers joined forces behind the scenes, it can now be reported, to block no-fault insurance.

The official record shows only that the Senate, by a 49-to-45 vote, recommitted S-354. But the story behind this routine development dramatizes how the people get their pockets picked by their own elected officials.

Senate bill S-354 would provide quick compensation for auto victims and would lower insurance premiums. For under no-fault, each insurance company would simply pay off its own policyholders without going to court.

This would cost the trial lawyers an estimated $1 billion in legal fees. The lawyers' loss would be the customers' gain, since the cost of litigation is passed on to the policyholders in the form of higher premiums.

But the trial lawyers had no intention of losing all that money. They hired the lobbying firm of Timmons and Company, which has more connections on Capitol Hill than the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. Its stars are two former White House lobbyists, William Timmons and Tom Korologos, who used to pull wires on Capitol Hill for ex-President Richard Nixon.

When Nixon departed the White House in disgrace, Timmons and Korologos hastily shifted allegiance to the new occupant. Timmons so ingratiated himself with President Ford that he became the President's convention manager in Kansas City. Korologos also enlisted in the Ford cause at the Kansas City convention.

The pair earn their living, however, lobbying for the special interests. Indeed, Timmons is known in the backrooms of Washington as "The Rainmaker," because he has been able to produce a downpour of benefits for his clients.

It looked bleak for the trial lawyers before they hired Timmons and Company. By private count, 56 senators were expected to support no-fault insurance. The bill, therefore, appeared to be headed for certain passage.

It also had the support of Transportation Secretary William Coleman, whose experts had concluded that the legislation was "great for consumers." But something funny happened to S-354 on the way to the Senate floor.

President Ford ignored the advice of his transportation secretary and dispatched White House lobbyist Joe Jenckes to Capitol Hill to work against the bill. Jenckes and Korologos quietly huddled together, comparing notes and discussing strategy.

Jenckes draws his salary from the taxpayers, and Korologos was paid by the trial lawyers. Yet they worked together in perfect harmony to benefit the trial lawyers at the expense of those taxpayers, at least, who pay automobile insurance premiums.

Jenckes acknowledged that he had lobbied against no-fault insurance and that he had conferred with Korologos. But Jenckes insisted that the White House and trial lawyers had not coordinated their efforts. Jenckes, Korologos and Timmons, nevertheless, pulled the switches that sidetracked S-354.

The best way for the special interests to show their appreciation for members of Congress, of course, is to contribute to their campaigns. With this in mind, the trial lawyers collected $352,304 in pledges to pass out to their friends on Capitol Hill. Another $445,500 in pledges was available, if more money was needed to win friends and influence congressmen.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R.-Md., for example, supported no-fault insurance the last time it came up in the Senate in 1974. He voted for it again this year inside the Senate Commerce Committee.

Then he had a talk with Korologos. Suddenly, the Senator had a change of heart, followed by a change of vote. Not long afterwards, Korologos' clients, the trial lawyers, sent Beall a $5,000 campaign contribution. A spokesman said Beall still favors the "no-fault concept" but thinks the regulation should be "left to the states."

Sen. Robert Stafford, R.-Vt., also voted for no-fault insurance in 1974, but voted to sidetrack a similar bill this year. The trial lawyers were so touched that they sent Stafford, too, a $5,000 campaign contribution.

The senator told us that he was visited by Korologos several weeks after the vote. According to Stafford's account, Korologos asked whether he would accept a contribution from the trial lawyers. The senator gratefully assented, and the $5,000 duly arrived. He changed his mind about no-fault insurance, he told our associate Gary Cohn, because of its "spotty record" and because his constituents showed no interest in it.

Footnote: A White House spokesman said President Ford believes no-fault insurance should be left to the states to decide. Neither Timmons nor Korologos returned our calls.

Alternative to prison

For years you and I have considered the practicability of an alternative to overcrowded prisons. The option was to allow nonviolent criminals to remain out of jail, to be employed under supervision, until they had paid back whatever they stole, plus court costs, plus a substantial fine, plus "damages" to the victim of their crime.

Salt Lake City is trying it.

First, Des Moines, Iowa instituted a "Court Services Program" wherein persons convicted of misdemeanors were spared jail and were assigned, instead, to live in an unguarded residential facility and to continue working at their jobs until they had "paid for their crimes" in money rather than in time.

Such were the results in Des Moines that the federal government offered to help five cities try variations of the program. If the resident has a family he also pays support — and he also pays restitution to the victim of his crime.

Ray Quintana, 18, arrested on repeated felony charges, was referred to the facility. He says, "I never held a job before coming here, and now I have one and it feels good to be making money. After I make up my high school credits, I'm going to try for dental school."

Ray, from a family where crime has always been part of the lifestyle, probably would have been "hardened" by a prison experience, and apparently he has been "softened" by this.

If this is the "second chance" for minor offenders, they get no "third chance" to return here. Flunk this test of personal responsibility and the next stop is prison.

Because the program gives the residents both the motive and the means to make money, to pay their way, to support their families, it saves taxpayer money three ways.

Perhaps the greatest long-term benefit of these experiments is that we are learning in the laboratory of human experience whether property crimes are not better punished by requiring restitution. Salt Lake City established a residential "alternative to jail" one year ago. That's not enough time properly to evaluate the effort, but the recidivism rate so far is impressive.

Where normally in Utah 50 percent of all persons released from custody are in trouble again within a year — that figure has been cut in half under this pilot program.

Jay Crandall, guidance counselor at this Salt Lake City facility, says, "We try to show our residents a positive alternative — a change for good in their lives"

He sees this as a "second chance" for an individual to turn his life around.

It was in Utah that the "Family Home" project began.

Mormon families would "adopt" a prisoner, visit him in prison and help him get a fresh start afterward.

The "Court Services Program," while not directly church related, does emphasize individual renewal.

The facility is largely a do-it-yourself rehabilitation program. Residents continue to go to work or to school. Each has his own checking and savings accounts, pays for his own room and board. As surely as "debtor prisons" were emptied by the literary imagery of Dickens, it may be that we will next learn how to make criminals "pay for" their crimes where presently society pays.

Just in jest

The way the Civil Rights legal experts have been winning anti-discrimination cases here lately, I'm surprised that thus far they have failed to file a class action suit on behalf of the children of America — a suit naming the builders and promoters of Senior Citizen housing areas as the defendants.

I have in mind those old folks enclaves where children are banned because they would disrupt the peace and quiet, tear up the lawns and shrubbery and interrupt the billiard, sewing, yoga, ballet and lapidary classes. Certainly a well versed legal expert on civil rights would have little trouble presenting some very telling arguments against such discriminatory anti-children rules. And who knows? Judging by the fantastic awards juries are making these days, ten, twenty, even thirty million dollar judgments wouldn't be impossible.

— Think of all the bubble gum, rock and roll records and tapes, thundering hi-fi sets and hand painted T-shirts our little pre-teenage brats could buy with that kind of easy money. Think, too, of what a nice cut the legal experts would get out of all those millions. Why, there could even be another story in the papers about how some legal light had been instrumental in bringing about a new high in damage awards.

Sacramento scene

7 with long public service

EARL G. WATERS

There was an interesting group lunching the other day at Posey's, the politicians' favorite eatery across the street from the State Capitol. Excepting for one, all were retired from public office.

Among them were those who had borne the title of Lt. Governor, Speaker, Secretary of State, Assemblyman, Senator, Senate President Pro Tem, and Supreme Court Justice at one time or another. Also two had been secretaries to governors, two acting governors, and three Senate consultants. Altogether the titles, which the group had worn, numbered more than 40.

Notwithstanding such an awesome collection there were only seven persons in the group. Yet, collectively they represented 240 years of public service!

The indisputable dean of the group was Senator Randolph Collier, now completing his 38th year in the California Senate, the longest of anyone in the state's history. With his 13 years of previous service as a Siskiyou County police judge he has held public office for 51 years and, hale and hearty, this amazing statesman is seeking yet another term in the Senate this November.

The two eldest present were Vincent D. Kennedy and Harold J. "Butch" Powers. Kennedy served as secretary to Governor C.C. Young during the years 1927 to 1931 and also as a deputy corporations commissioner and counsel to the Public Utilities Commission on leaving public office he became one of the most respected lobbyists in Sacramento representing the Retail Merchants Association for many years. Retired, he has been serving as a consultant to Senate President Pro Tem James Mills.

Powers rose from Senate minute clerk to Senator and became Senate President Pro Tem. He later succeeded Goodwin J. Knight as Lt. Governor. After retiring from elective office in 1959 he was appointed deputy director of the federal General Services agency by President Eisenhower and later as Director of the Department of Professional and Vocational Standards by Governor Pat Brown. Retired, he keeps active on his cattle ranch.

Hugh M. Burns, a one time Fresno County deputy coroner, came to the Assembly in 1937, was elected to the Senate and served 12 years as President Pro Tem, the longest of anyone in state history, retiring in 1970 after 34 years of legislative service. Appointed by Governor Reagan to the Alcoholics Beverage Appeals Board where he served as chairman, he retired from that this year. Both Powers and Burns often served as acting Governor.

Others in attendance were Paul Peek, James K. Carr and this writer. Peek was elected to the Assembly the same year as Burns and became Speaker in 1939, then Secretary of State. He was appointed to the District Court of Appeals, became presiding justice and later appointed to the Supreme Court. He retired in 1967 after 30 years.

Carr has by far had the most titles. Starting as a state highway engineer, he has held local posts in the city of Redding, his hometown, and the county of Shasta, served as an engineer with the US Geological Survey and Bureau of Reclamation; served as a Congressional consultant, was Undersecretary of the Interior, and had been assistant general manager of the Sacramento Utility District, general manager of the San Francisco Public Utilities, and director of both the San Francisco International Airport and the Sacramento Metropolitan Airport. He was also chairman of the State Water Commission and rounded out his career by serving as a Senate consultant.

This columnist served as a secretary to Governor Culbert L. Olson, chief investigator for the Senate, Senate consultant and chief of the State Division of Investigation.

Domestic rats very gentle

DEAR DR. MILLER: Before I owned one, I always thought rats were mean. But Brat doesn't have a mean bone in his body. He's the sweetest rat anybody ever saw. He won't bite even if you accidentally hurt him. (This happened once.) Did you ever hear of such a sweet rat? — T. L.

DEAR T.L: A little T.L.C. goes a long way with most rats, and given half a chance, most are surprisingly gentle. (This does NOT apply to wild rats, however, or to a few domesticated strains.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: Bernie doesn't mean to be perverse, I don't think, but she's turned out that way. When a puppy, she'd sleep all day and cry half the night for somebody to get up and keep her company. Now she's grown up and supposed to be a watchdog for us at night, so what does she do? She's bright and sprightly during the day, and sleeps like a dog — a very old, dead one — during the night. Nothing wakes her up. I've heard about biological clocks and all that business, but is there some easy way we can turn her sleeping time around? — J. O.

DEAR J. O.: Since Bernie is not basically nocturnal and is people-oriented, expect her to make the switch reluctantly. It'll help if you try to get her keyed up instead of relaxed in the evening. One point here: Feed her in the morning so she'll tend to doze more after the heavy meal. Most important, try to instill a sense of responsibility so she has an incentive to stay awake, or at least on the alert. Once she's really aware of her job as a night watchdog, she'll probably begin to take it more seriously.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I pulled a big, fat crawly thing that turned out to be tick off of Omar, my lizard. I don't know where it came from. As a precaution, should I provide Omar with a tick collar? — M. M.

DEAR M. M.: Definitely not. While ticks can be dangerous to reptiles and humans, for Omar, at least, the tick collar would be even more so. It may, when used on reptiles, cause complete paralysis. Clean up Omar's quarters, of course, and should you discover another tick on him, soak it with mineral oil for a while first. Then carefully remove the entire tick, including the head, with a firm pull-while-twisting motion.

Ann Landers

Who said they were freaks?

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in regard to your answer to the woman who said she and her husband had happily terminated their sex life. Your reply: "I fell sorry for both of you."

Why? In an age when we are bombarded with pornographic magazines, X-rated films and TV garbage, shops selling sex "aids" and psychologists providing orgasm counseling, isn't it refreshing to know there are people who are removed from all this?

An example of how lopsided our world has become hit me with great impact last night when a TV host (well-known) inquired of an astronaut, "What did you do about sex in space?" Has America become so hooked on instant gratification that we can no longer conceive of self-control?

The woman who wrote to you, Miss Landers, explained that she and her husband had decided they could lead a full life without sex. Why should they be considered freaks? If you are still reading this letter, I'd appreciate an answer. — Alternate Viewpoint

Dear A. V.: Who said they were freaks? My comment was, "I feel sorry for both of you." And I do — in the same way I feel sorry for people who are unable to see the beauty in a rose or a sunset, a waterfall, a lovely poem or soul-stirring music. Essential to life? No. But they add enormous pleasure and joy.

Work is the meat and potatoes. Appreciation for beauty is the dessert. And a mutually rewarding sexual relationship between a man and his wife is the most beautiful sharing experience of all.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old girl who has looked up to you as a mother figure for a long time. I hope you can help me. It's a step-dad. I hate him. He criticizes everything I do. I have tried to improve myself, but he never notices.

I am fat and I know it without him reminding me all the time. I should do something about my weight but it's hard not to eat things when they are right in front of me and I'm so hungry.

I stay in my room and cry a lot. I haven't told my mom how I feel because she wouldn't understand. But I get nervous and upset when I think of staying in a house with a step-dad who hates me. It will be five more years before I go away to college. Can you suggest something? — Blue Grass Girl

Dear Girl: Talk to your mother. This is too much of a burden to carry alone.

Your overeating is probably related to the problem with your step-dad. I hope your mother will take you to a doctor for a check-up and a diet. I hope, too, that she will speak to your school counselor about some talking sessions. You need someone who will listen to you. If your mom is unsympathetic, please go to the school counselor on your own and be as honest and open as you were with me. Good luck, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: I have an 11-year-old daughter who is very smart for her age. Suzie comes up with some of the darnest things. I don't know if it's TV that makes kids so sophisticated these days or what.

When I have a friend or two over (women) Suzie loves to sit in on our conversations. I sense that my friends don't like it. When I ask the child to go out and play she looks so hurt I feel guilty. I hate to displease my friends but I think it's educational for Suzie to hear adults talk. What do you think? — Modern Mom

Dear Mom: It's educational all right. Too educational. Suzie is out of place monitoring adult conversation and your friends are justified in their resentment.

The trouble with families

I was watching a situation comedy series the other night of a typical American family. This family laughed until they got sick.

Every time Daddy opened his mouth, he was a scream. The mother was a stitch. And the kids were absolute geniuses at spewing out hilarious retorts. I looked around at our group. My husband was deeply depressed over the paper. (He's looked like that since he let his GI insurance lapse.) One child was on the phone insisting, "I don't belive it" every minute and a half. Another was locked in his room with the stereo on and the other was staring morosely into the refrigerator waiting for something to embrace him.

"You know the trouble with this family? We're not funny. All the other families in the world are sitting around throwing away one-liners and having a barrel of laughs. 'Hawaii Five-O' gets more laughs than we do."

The next night as I heard my husband's car in the garage I shouted, "Hey gang, heeeereeeees Daddy!"

"Well," said our son, "if it isn't our father whose wallet is full of big bills . . . all unpaid."

"What's the matter with you?" asked my husband. "You're on your feet. Has your car been resposessed?"

"Dyyyynoooomite!" said our youngest. (I almost fell off the chair.)

"Hey Mom!" said a son, "what do you get if you take a fender from a Chevvy, the chrome from a Ford and the hubcaps from a Pontiac?" I shook my head. "Six months!"

"A rubber hose up your nose," I said amid laughter.

"So," said my husband, "I thought you were going to straighten up the house."

"Why?" I asked, "Is it tilted?" (Group doubling over.) "Incidentally, did you hear Mel just got a poodle for his wife?"

"I wish I could make a trade like that," he said.

"Hey dad," said our daughter, "the dog just ate Mom's meat loaf."

"Don't cry," he said, "I'll buy you another dog."

Mother poked her head in the door. "Got any coffee?"

We all slumped in our chairs exhausted. Thank God for commercials.

Tall tale on cream in coffee

DEAR DR. LAMB — More than once I've been assured by my black coffee drinking friends that my habit of putting cream or lightner in my coffee (no sugar) is much harder on the stomach than drinking it black. I'd like to know whether there is any truth in their claim — or is it just an "old wives tale?" If one drinks creamed coffee with a meal, how would the stomach know whether the cream came in with the coffee or perhaps in the cream pie?

DEAR READER — Old wives' tale. The important thing is what goes into the stomach, not the combination. If a person had milk intolerance and used lots of light cream he might have indigestion. However, that would occur whether the light cream was used in the coffee or in any other food as you point out.

You can tell your black coffee drinking friends that the real danger to the stomach is the coffee itself. Anyone who has acid indigestion or similar problems should not use much coffee in any form. For more information on coffee I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-1, Coffee, Tea, Cola, Cocoa. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do you have any information on ganglion cysts? My husband had one removed from the top of his foot a year ago. We would be interested in anything you could tell us. Would it be wise for my husband to avoid strenuous use of his foot as in excessive walking?

We cannot ask the doctor who did the surgery as he was killed in plane crash 10 days later. We live in an isolated area where doctors are few and far between. He did tell us it might possibly grow back but so far it seems okay.

Would the use of one of those vibrating water foot tubs do either harm or good for his foot?

DEAR READER — Ganglions are more commonly located on the back of the hand or the wrist. They are simply a sac-like formation filled with fluid. The tendons have sheaths of tissue around them of material that looks a bit like the plastic wrap material you have in the kitchen. If you trap some water in a pocket of the plastic material it will be very much like the cyst.

No one knows why the sheaths develop such a cyst but they are not dangerous or harmful. Sometimes they may be mildly painful because of pressure on a nearby nerve.

Often a small cyst can be broken by striking it a sharp blow. When the cyst breaks the fluid runs out and it is usually cured. A common treatment is to strike it with a heavy book, often the Bible, hence the term of the "Family Bible treatment" for cysts.

More complex or larger cysts may have to be removed surgically. Usually they will not occur. Of course, you have no guarantee that another fold of sheath-like tissues will not trap fluid and form a new cyst. If it is small it too can be broken.

There is no reason why your husband could not be as active as the rest of his health status permits. I don't think he need give any special attention to his foot now, but should consider it cured. If he should be unlucky enough to have a new cyst form it can easily be broken or if need be, removed. I don't think he needs any foot tubs or other special care.

South ruffed the second diamond and went into communion with nature. He knew he had overbid a trifle and the slam was not a good one. There was a simple way to play the hand. Cash the king of hearts and hope for a 2-2 trump break.

South decided that trumps just weren't going to behave that nicely. Then he worked out a complicated way to go after the slam. He cashed dummy's king-jack of clubs and was glad to see he was right about clubs not breaking. Then he ruffed a diamond and ran off the rest of his trumps.

The last trump lead squeezed West. He had to throw away a heart to keep the high diamond. The last diamond was thrown from dummy then and four heart tricks gave South his slam.

"Horseshoes!" sputtered West. "And to think I could have beaten you with a spade shift."

"No, you would not have," replied South. "I would cash my king of hearts, lead a trump to dummy and start the hearts. East would ruff the fourth lead. I would overruff, go to dummy with the last trump and cash that fifth heart for my contract."

Running for its life, a big Trachodon dinosaur splashes into the safety of a swamp. Death stalks close behind in the terrible jaws of a hungry Tyrannosaurus rex (pronounced tie-RAN-o-sore-us), the "tyrant reptile king."

The largest and probably the most bloodthirsty of the meat-eating dinosaurs, Tyrannosaurus rex tried to kill and eat any animal it could catch. Only the armored triceratops with its long horns had any defense against this fearsome hunter.

Nearly 50 feet long and 20 feet high, this monster walked upright on its strong hind legs. Its forelegs were small and useless.

The jaws in its enormous head were armed with daggerlike teeth six inches long.

Tyrannosaurus rex died out with the rest of the dinosaurs between 60 and 70 million years ago. If you visit a natural history museum, you can get a pretty good idea of what a Tyrannosaurus rex must have looked like from its fossil skeleton.

OMS SIZZLER — Indy 500 champ Johnny Rutherford gets ready for high speed run at Ontario Motor Speedway Monday. Rutherford, in 110 degree heat, had fastest run of the day, 187.153 mph.

Al Unser uninjured in wreck

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

California 500 qualifications, now less than 24 hours away, took a stunning turn Monday.

First defending champion A. J. Foyt informed track officials he isn't sure he can get to OMS in time for Wednesday's qualifying.

Then, about 5:30 p.m., a half hour before the track shut down for the day, Al Unser smashed up his car in the first turn. Unser is okay, but the car is apparently out of the race and he'll drive his backup vehicle.

Foyt telephoned officials from Houston, Texas earlier in the day. His crew and two cars have been at the speedway since Friday. But Foyt was never seen.

The mystery was cleared up when he reported that his mother had suffered a stroke Sunday morning, was partially paralyzed and in an intensive care unit in a Houston hospital. Doctors advised him not to leave for at least 24 hours.

Under USAC rules, A. J. would be required to still put in 10 laps on the track at a "reasonable" speed prior to qualifying. There is a two-hour practice session both Wednesday and Thursday morning prior to qualifications.

"A. J." probably won't be here until Wednesday and might wait until Thursday and qualify farther back in the field," said USAC executive director Dick King.

"It all depends on how his mother is. In any event, he'll return to Houston after qualifying and return race day."

One source quoted Foyt as saying if he weren't the defending Cal 500 champion, he wouldn't even attempt to race here.

Unser and Al Loquasto crashed in almost the same place Monday. Loquasto was the first to go. The Easton, Pa. driver lost control of his No. 86 Frostie McLaren between the first and second turns. A strong wind could have been the culprit in both cases.

The car skidded backward into the wall so hard it was bent too badly to be repaired thus knocking him out of Sunday's race.

Unser, in his Parnelli-Cosworth, had been clocked earlier at 186.428 mph after his crew changed the engine. In his disastrous run, he, too lost it (went out of control) in the first turn and smacked the wall.

The right front side of his car actually got on top of the wall before falling off and spinning down into the infield.

"I almost got up into the cable on the fence," he exclaimed. The No. 21 car will be repaired, but shortly after 6 p.m. his crew announced that Unser would drive the backup No. 25 car, another Parnelli Cosworth.

The heat kept track activity at a minimum for the second day in a row. But 38 cars got out in the 110-degree temperature.

Indianapolis 500 winner Johnny Rutherford turned the fastest lap of the day, 187.153 mph in his No. 2 McLaren Offy.

However, Rutherford's crew chief, Tyler Alexander, vigorously denied the team McLaren crew should be the favorite to win the pole Wednesday.

"It's so hot no one is really trying to go fast," he exclaimed. "We don't even know which way we're going. We've tried two completely different setups on the car and gone about the same speed."

Jerry Grant, in his No. 73 AMC stock block powered Eagle finally began to achieve the speeds he had been seeking. Grant, who turned the first 200 mph lap at OMS in 1972, got up to 186.637 mph.

Gordie Johncock made his first appearance in the No. 20 Patrick Racing Team Bignotti powered Wildcat. He was third fastest Monday at 185.908 a fraction better than 1974 winner Bobby Unser's 185.594 in the No. 3 Cobre Eagle.

Only other driver to exceed 185 mph was Tom Sneva in the No. 68 Penske Racing McLaren Offy. Sneva reached 185.223.

The other five fastest times were 1972 winner Roger McCluskey (184.820), 1973 winner Wally Dallenbach (184.245), Rookie Danny Ongais (182.593) and Mike Mosley (181.884).

Mechanical difficulties again plagued the Vollstedt Offys. Neither Dick Simon nor Janet Guthrie were able to get up to speed.

Replacing Scully a difficult chore

As yet there is little information on who will replace Vin Scully on the Dodger road broadcasts next year.

Scully, as you are no doubt aware by now, will be doing only the home radio and road TV games that do not conflict with his CBS television schedule.

The club has been very closed mouthed about it and even the crew of Scully, Jerry Doggett and Dodger Network Director Dave Van de Walker say it has not been discussed yet, at least with any of them.

With Scully remaining to do possibly (depending upon how many home radio or road TV games he has to miss because of TV committments) a little more than half the Dodger games, hiring a third announcer is more difficult.

None of the "name" broadcasters currently working would be willing to leave a full time position to do only the Dodger road games.

That's why the names of Jeff Witcher and Chuck Bennett have been the only ones mentioned since Scully agreed to stay and do part of the schedule beginning next year.

Witcher currently does the "Dodger Talk" programs on KABC radio. Bennett, who used to be sports director of KFI (the Dodger flagship station at that time) currently is a staff and sports announcer at KCOP, channel 13.

One that never was mentioned is Don Wells. Wells is now doing sports shows nightly on KFWB after broadcasting the Angels games for many years.

He's a much better baseball announcer than several of those currently announcing games. He also has loads of experience. However Don counts himself out.

Youngster likely

"I don't know in what direction the Dodgers are going," Wells said via telephone Monday. "But it would seem to me that they would hire a young announcer and train him to eventually replace Scully.

"Jeff Witcher broadcasts the games at Albuquerque, the Dodgers top farm team. He's from the organization and they're a very close organization.

"He also would be able to work at what, under this setup, is really a part time job."

According to the Dodger broadcasting crew, nothing will be done about hiring the new announcer until after the season ends.

Both Scully and Doggett said they felt they would be consulted or have some voice in the matter.

As yet, it hasn't even been decided who will do the most innings. Scully has always done all but the third and seventh innings on radio.

On the TV games, Vin has always done the first and last three innings with Doggett doing the middle three.

Asked if he would fulfill Scully's role in the road radio games next year, Doggett shrugged. "I have no idea," he replied. "Nothing has ever been discussed.

Whoever he is, the new Dodger broadcaster will be stepping into a most difficult situation. Not only will he be replacing the non pareil of baseball announcers, but with Scully still doing the home games, the inevitable comparisons will be much easier and the fans will have a little time to get used to him before Scully is back.

Too many 'jocks'

HERE 'N THERE — One thing Wells mentioned that the writer agrees with fully is the increasing lack of professionalism in the broadcasting booth, especially with so many "jocks" (athletes) invading the booths.

Just because someone has played football or baseball or some sport doesn't mean they can announce it. Some of them are even inept at doing the "color" on the broadcasts.

The worst interview this writer has ever seen conducted was the one Bob Gibson did with John Candelaria on national television after Candelaria's no hitter over the Dodgers.

Gibson not only had no idea apparently of what to ask Candelaria, he never once even pronounced his name right.

ABC has been guilty of trying to talk us to death on their NFL and Baseball broadcasts Monday nights. There is absolutely no need to have three men telling you what you are looking at.

Someday someone at the television networks may recognize that television is a visual medium. It needs to be supplemented by sound only when the viewer might not be able to perceive what is occurring.

The National Hockey League is apparently going to step into the Monday night sports void after the NFL finishes up its slate.

According to vice president Don V. Ruck of the NHL, a series of Monday night games will be televised January through March on a network of stations together by the league. No Los Angeles outlet has been named.

Donahue promises passing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA Coach Terry Donahue says his Bruins, a team which hasn't had much use for passing in recent years, will throw more this season.

"We're planning to throw 15 to 18 times a game," Donahue said Monday.

But he added a qualifier.

"If we're able to move consistently on the ground, we might not throw as much."

Donahue says he isn't sure yet who'll be doing the throwing.

"We still have no definite starter at quarterback," Donahue said. "Jeff Dankworth pulled ahead in spring practice, and he's still ahead.

"I do hope to have a definite starter this season, but it might be a week-to-week thing. I know in 1972, we alternated Mark Harmon and John Sciarra."

Steve Bukich, son of former University of Southern California and pro quarterback Rudy Bukich, is pressing Dankworth for the quarterback job.

Both quarterbacks have looked sharp throwing in practice this fall. Donahue credits assistant coach Dwain Painter with much of their improvement.

"Jeff has always had good passing skills," said Donahue, "and I think Dwain has done a fine job with him. If Jeff is throwing better this fall, the credit should go to him and coach Painter."

Donahue hopes, however, that UCLA's running game is good enough that there'll be no pressure on the Bruins to pass.

"I think we're strong at running back," he remarked. "We have a good combination of speed and power, and we have good depth there.

"Wendell Tyler is a great one," Donahue said of the Bruins senior running back who gained 1,388 yards last season and is a Heisman Trophy candidate.

The other probable starter at running back, Theotis Brown, also has impressed Donahue.

"He's big and strong and has exceptional speed," Donahue said. "He's got great physical promise."

UCLA's first game is Sept. 9 against Arizona State in Tempe, Ariz., and Donahue said he has a great deal of respect for the Sun Devils, ranked third in The Associated Press preseason poll.

"They're extremely explosive on offense," Donahue commented. "Their defense is hard to judge because they have to replace players who graduated. It should be interesting."

Angels find way to win

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — Norm Sherry has a big problem facing him.

How to devise a different way for the Angeles to win. Sunday they got a gift win from the Yankees. Monday night, they thrilled 16,924 Family Night fans by stealing a 2-1 victory from the Detroit Tigers.

Dave Collins was the hero. The speedy left fielder stole home off Tiger pitcher Jim Crawford with two out in the eighth inning to break a 1-1 tie.

Collins led off the Halo eighth by beating out an infield hit. Jerry Remy sacrificed him to second and he took third on Tommy Davis' infield out.

Collins took a big lead as the lefthanded Crawford threw a strike to Tony Solaita. He got another big lead as Crawford wound up for his second pitch.

Suddenly he took off to the surprise of everyone, especially Crawford, and beat the throw to the plate for his first-ever theft of home.

"I thought I could do it," he said matter of factly after the game. "I went almost halfway down the line on the first pitch and he (Crawford) hardly gave me a look.

"I made up my mind if he let me get that far again, I'd go. I tried it last year at Tucson (PCL) and didn't make it."

Collins and the ball arrived at the same time. But umpire Lou DiMuro hardly hesitated before spreading his hands in "safe" sign.

"I thought I was safe," Collins said. "My foot hit the plate and he tagged me on the knee."

Detroit catcher Bill Freehan and manager Ralph Houk didn't think so. The enraged Freehan never even bothered to get up.

He kept crawling around on his knees pounding the spot on the ground where he said he made the tag before Collins touched the plate, alternately waving his arms and shouting at DiMuro.

Houk lost his cap in his haste to get to DiMuro. Upon arrival at the plate he went nose to nose with DiMuro. Whenever DiMuro turned away, the stocky Houk would hop around in front of him and kick up a cloud of dust.

The second kick earned him ejection from the game. So he grabbed Freehan's helmet and hurled that to the ground before stomping angrily off the field.

Earlier, Collins had literally knocked Tiger starter Ray Bare out of the game with a line shot off Bare's right knee. Bare was taken to a hospital for X rays. But the preliminary report listed only a bad bruise.

Winning pitcher Paul Hartzell (5-4) retired the Tigers in order in the ninth and finished with a five-hitter.

Hartzell was extremely impressive. He threw only 73 pitches, 54 of which were strikes. The game lasted only one hour, 37 minutes, fastest in the American League this year.

Yet he did it all with just one pitch.

"I only had my fastball tonight," he revealed. "My slider was up and after (Ron) LeFlore's homer, I used it only as a waste pitch.

"In fact of the 74 pitches I threw, five were sliders and three were changeups. That's eight pitches that weren't fastballs out of the 74."

LaFlore got his home run, his fourth, leading off the fourth inning. He had beaten out a bunt the first time up.

The Angels tied it in their half of the inning on Bill Melton's double and Bob Jones' single.

"Let's get lots of runs tomorrow night and win easy for a change," sighed Sherry.

ANGEL ANGLES — A change was announced in the pitching schedule. Nolan Ryan (10-17) faces Vern Ruhle (8-9) tonight. Frank Tanana (14-9) will go against lefty Dave Roberts (12-13) Wednesday.

The Halos are 18-17 since Sherry replaced Dick Williams.

Melton, despite playing little the last two months, (he has only 286 at-bats) still leads the club with 16 doubles.

The Tigers had a rookie, Phil Mankowski, at third base making his major league debut. Claremonter Dick Wiencek picked Mankowski up at the Los Angeles airport at 3:20 p.m. after Mankowski had flown in from Evansville, Ind.

Mankowski replaced Aurelio Rodriguez who will undergo ankle surgery today. Rodriguez tore ligaments in his ankle Sunday at Oakland.

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych signed more than 1000 autographs before the game. He'll do the same tonight and Wednesday.

Padres peddle Willie Mac

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Veteran Willie McCovey, a power-hitting lefthanded batter, was sold to the Oakland A's today after less than three seasons in San Diego. His 1976 contract still is unsigned.

The 38-year-old McCovey, who has seen only sporadic duty at first base this year with the Padres, will be used as a designated hitter for the A's. Oakland is trying to catch the frontrunning Kansas City Royals in the American League West.

McCovey ranks 14th among all-time home run hitters with 465. In his first year with the San Francisco Giants in 1959, he was named rookie of the year.

E.J. "Buzzie" Bavasi, the Padres' president, said McCovey's spot on the roster would be filled when the minor league season ends next week.

As a holdout with the Padres, McCovey was hitting .203 after 71 games. He had seven homers and 37 runs batted in.

No figures for the cash transaction were disclosed.

McCovey is building a new home in the San Francisco area and has expressed a desire to return there for some time, the spokesman said.

Cal quarterbacks impressing coach

MORAGA, Calif. (AP) — Coach Mike White, in sizing up his California football squad, talked more about backup quarterback Fred Besana than he did about Pacific-8 passing leader Joe Roth.

"He typifies the strength of our program. He's going about the business of improving his performance and that's going to make Roth even better," White told the touring Pac-8 Skywriters at Cal's summer training camp her Monday.

Only an injury to Roth, who passed for 1,880 yards and 14 touchdowns as a junior, would promote Besana, also a senior, to the starting lineup. But the No. 2 man completed 51 per cent of his passes for 499 yards last year, statistics which back up White's confidence in him.

The Bears's offense averaged 458 yards per game, tops in college football, in 1975 and Roth has several experienced linemen back to work with as well as running backs Tom Newton and Paul Jones, flanker Wes Walker and tight end George Freitas.

Chuck Muncie, the All-American tailback who rushed for 1,460 yards, and wide receiver Steve Rivera, who caught 57 passes, are now in pro football.

"Maybe no one will ever match Chuck Muncie in ability, but Tom Newton will come close to matching his accomplishments," White predicted.

Newton and Jones, both from nearby San Jose, shared the fullback job last year and combined for 846 yards, averaging better than five yards per carry. Newton now is at tailback, and White says, "They're two of the best running backs we've ever had."

There is plenty of depth at the running back and receiver positions, too, with White explaining, "Our offensive system attracts quality athletes."

On defense, even last year when Cal finished 8-3 and shared the Pac-8 title with UCLA, the Bears have had their weaknesses.

"But we have eight players back who started the last game. We're experienced and have a lot more speed than we've ever had," White said.

The most experienced defenders are linebacker Phil Heck, middle guard Bob Warner and free safety Syd Lofton. The defensive unit will be asked to stop the high-scoring offensive machines of Georgia, Oklahoma and Arizona State in the Bears' first three games, all on the road.

"I'd like to see our schedule a little different, to be honest," White said but added, "we'll go into each of those games thinking we can win."

Roth, whose offensive unit may be capable of outscoring any team, made it clear he has no Heisman Trophy thoughts, although he's the preseason favorite to become the first quarterback chosen by the National Football League next winter.

Chargers obtain Clint Longley

DALLAS (AP) — Clint Longley, quarterback, rattlesnake hunter and amateur pugilist, is now a San Diego Charger.

The Dallas Cowboys traded the disenchanted reserve quarterback to the Chargers for undisclosed draft choices, Dallas announced Monday night.

"We felt it was for the best interests of the team as well as Clint that we trade him to San Diego," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "It's a good opportunity for him. It's a club that's on the way up and this can be a chance for him to play."

Longley was suspended by the Cowboys in early August after he punched starting quarterback Roger Staubach in a training room incident at Dallas' preseason camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Rams, Vikings sell out opener

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have announced their first sellout of the 1976 National Football League season.

The Vikings said Monday that all tickets for their regular season opener Sept. 19 against the Los Angeles Rams have been sold, which means the game will be televised locally.

The Vikings said only single and obstructed-view tickets remain for the rest of their home schedule, with the exception of the Nov. 14 contest against the expansion Seattle club.

Browns survive scare

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns had no sooner made the New England Patriots their fourth straight National Football League preseason victim Monday night when the Buffalo Bills took the edge off the triumph.

The Browns survived a scary finish, engineered by New England quarterback Steve Grogan, coming away with a 30-27 victory.

There was little time to enjoy it, however, as the tired Browns realized they had less than 48 hours until they leave for Buffalo where they close the preseason Friday night.

"It is a little difficult to get excited about this game when we play again this week," explained Cleveland running back Cleo Miller. "But it's still nice to win."

Miller, who apparently has earned a starting spot this season after coming to the Browns as a free agent last year in midseason, led the surprising Cleveland ground game with 80 yards and one touchdown in 18 carries.

His night was cut short, however, when he became embroiled in one of several scuffles during the game and became one of four players ejected for fighting. That came with 10:01 remaining and with the Browns on their way to their final touchdown and a 30-14 lead.

Carew a gambler

By Associated Press

"Stealing home is just a gamble you take," says Minnesota's Rod Carew, a master of that lost baserunning art. "Sometimes you make it, sometimes you don't."

It's less of a gamble if you know what you're doing, however, and Carew has proven he knows. He swiped home for the 15th time in his career in the first inning Monday night to start the Twins on their way to a 10-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The first thing you do is study the opposing pitcher, in this case Milwaukee starter Jerry Augustine.

"I was going to go one pitch before," Carew said. "I timed the guy's windup and he was taking too much time."

Then you look for a little help from your friends ... particularly the batter, Butch Wynegar.

"Butch helped me out by leaning out there and blocking the catcher's view," said Carew. "He must have seen me coming."

Then you go. It's a gamble, but if you know what you're doing you can shake up a pitcher. Carew made it, and Augustine did not last through the second inning.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels edged the Detroit Tigers 2-1, the Boston Red Sox bombed the Texas Rangers 11-3, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Kansas City Royals 3-2 and the New York Yankees defeated the Oakland A's 5-2.

In the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-1 and the Houston Astros defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1.

"He makes you sweat up there," Brewers Manager Alex Grammas said of the 31-year-old Carew, who is batting .326 with 43 stolen bases. "He's a tough out, especially when they count."

Can Carew overtake Kansas City's Hal McRae (.351) and George Brett (.331) and win his fifth consecutive batting crown?

"If it comes down to the last three games, I'll put my money on Carew," said Grammas. "He could play in a cow pasture and get his hits. I don't care if its artificial turf or three-foot grass, I'll take Carew."

"Yes, I think I could beat them both," said Carew, "although their artificial turf wouldn't help me. I tend to spoil people by hitting .350 every year. People expect me to do it all the time."

Tom Burgmeier relieved Twins starter Pete Redfern with one out in the first inning and stopped the Brewers on just one run and three hits the rest of the way. Carew had two hits, scored two runs and drove in two more to lead the Twins' 10-run, 16-hit assault.

Red Sox 11, Rangers 3

Jim Rice collected four of Boston's 18 hits, including two home runs, and drove in five runs. Cecil Cooper and Fred Lynn added three hits apiece as Luis Tiant posted his 16th victory against 10 losses.

Orioles 3, Royals 2

Bobby Grich doubled home the tying run in the sixth inning, took third on an infield out and scored on Lee May's sacrifice fly. Rudy May, 11-9, went all the way for the victory although he allowed 12 hits.

Yankees 5, A's 2

New York remained 11½ games ahead of Oakland in the AL East as Ed Figueroa recorded his 16th victory of the season against seven losses. He allowed six hits and seven walks.

Cards 7, Reds 1

Rookie Garry Templeton collected three hits and scored two runs to pace a 12-hit attack as St. Louis cut the Reds' lead in the NL West to 8½ games over the idle Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I've played against their players ever since I started in organized baseball," said the 20-year-old Templeton. "When you play them, you're playing the best and you want to do everything you can to beat them."

Astros 3, Phils 1

Cesar Cedeno belted a two-run double for Houston. It was the fourth consecutive loss for the Phillies, who lead the Pittsburgh Pirates in the NL East by 11½ games.

Vikings want eighth straight division title

By Associated Press

If there's a sure thing in the National Football League, the Minnesota Vikings would be it.

The Vikings should win their eighth National Football Conference Central Division title in nine years this season if advancing age doesn't catch up with several key performers.

Only Detroit appears capable of challenging. Green Bay and Chicago can only hope for respectability after disastrous 4-10 seasons in 1975.

Still, for the first time in several years, the Vikings may have a chink in their armor.

"All along we've said that one of our strength is the fact we have returnees at all positions," says Coach Bud Grant. "The loss of John Gilliam has changed that."

The speedy Gilliam, who signed with Atlanta as a free agent earlier this year, holds most Viking receiving records and was responsible for keeping pressure on enemy defenses in the past four years.

The turnover in the rest of the division is staggering by comparison.

Detroit Coach Rick Forzano is promising Lions fans a divisional title, but his best players may well have gone through the primes of their careers caddying for the Vikings.

Green Bay hinges its hopes for improvement on a new quarterback and the Chicago Bears appear improved, but not to the point of being a challenger.

"When we're good enough, we won't be afraid to say so," says Bears General Manager Jim Finks.

Detroit will have a schedule advantage on its Central Division rivals. The Los Angeles Rams and Minnesota are the only Lions' opponents who made the playoffs in 1975.

Minnesota, on the other hand, has a rugged schedule, especially in the early part of the season. The Vikings, who opened their last three seasons with 9, 5 and 10 consecutive victories, respectively, will need another fast start facing the Rams, Lions and Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers in the first month.

The rapid takeoffs have been piloted by Fran Tarkenton, who at 36 is still the best quarterback in the division, perhaps in the league.

The durable scrambler will own every passing record in the game at the end of the season, barring injury. Tarkenton, the Most Valuable Player in the NFL last season, threw for 2,994 yards and 25 of his record 291 lifetime touchdown passes in 1975.

"I think I can play better than ever," said Tarkenton, beginning a new three-year contract. "I'm doing a lot more today than I did 10 years ago and I still want to do more."

First-round draft choice Lawrence Gaines from Wyoming and Dexter Bussey will be the running backs with Ray Jarvis and Larry Walton at the flanker positions.

"We will strive to make more big plays this year," said Forzano.

Rockne Freitas is the most familiar name in the offensive line, where 6-5, 255-pound rookie Russ Bollinger from Long Beach State may earn a starting job at tackle. The Lions also acquired veteran center Jon Morris.

The secondary appears to be Detroit's strongest unit defensively. Cornerbacks Lem Barney and Ben Davis and safeties Charlie West and Dick Jauron are four solid veterans. James Hunter, one of the club's two first-round picks, may push someone out of a job. The rangy rookie from Grambling can play either position.

Defensive tackle Herb Orvis, looking to be traded, anchors the line, backed up by linebackers Paul Naumoff, Charlie Weaver and Jim Laslavic.

Jack Pardee begins his second year with the Bears hoping to shed a pushover label.

"I don't know if this will be the complete comeback year or not, but we know we've made improvement," says Pardee. "We've still got a long way to go to have the ideal situation."

Quarterback Bob Avellini and running back Walter Payton, both second-year players, will be largely responsible for improving the offense. Roland Harper and Johnny Musso will help at running back.

Chicago will still have a young offensive line headed by tackle Lionel Antoine. The defensive unit will probably be the team's strength, although the secondary is suspect.

Wally Chambers, regarded one of the NFL's best tackles, end Mike Hartenstine, and linebackers Waymond Bryant and Doug Buffone are the top individual performers on defense.

Ridley defends amateur golf title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four former champions, including defending titlist Fred Ridley, are entered in the 76th United States Amateur Golf Tournament opening today at the short but tricky Bel-Air Country Club.

Ridley of Winterhaven, Fla., beat Keith Fergus, a Houston University product, 2-up last year in Richmond, Va., to win the title.

Ridley draws a bye in the first round this time, but British Open champion Dick Siderowf goes against Mike Barge of Fargo, N.D., in a first-round match.

The other former U.S. Open champions are Vinny Giles, 33, of Richmond, W.Va., who won in 1972; Gary Cowan, 37, of Kitchener, Ontario, who won in both 1966 and 1971, and Bill Campbell, 53, of Huntington, W.Va., who won in 1964.

Siderowf of Westport, Conn., could join a group including Bobby Jones and Lawson Little should he add the U.S. title to his British crown in a single year. Siderowf also won the Brtish title in 1973 but couldn't make the double that year. He did win the Canadian Amateur in 1974.

The Bel-Air course measures 6,507 yards and plays to a 36-34—70 par.

Two hundred golfers qualified for the week of matches with the list including former San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie and Julius Boros, Jr., son of the former U.S. Open champion. Also in the field is veteran Ed Tutwiler, 57, Indianapolis, who was runnerup to Campbell in 1964. Campbell is in his 33rd U.S. Open and Tutwiler his 17th.

Hot weather greets the golfers as the eliminations call for single 18-hole rounds on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, two of them on Friday and Saturday and a 36-hole final on Sunday.

Temperatures at the course Monday soared close to 100 degrees.

NFL players see proposal

CHICAGO (AP) — A divided negotiating committee presents to representatives for National Football League players a proposed agreement today that could end 2½ years of strife with the owners.

The seven-member Executive Committee of the National Football League Players Association met behind closed doors late Monday in advance of today's meeting with representatives from all 28 clubs.

Dick Anderson, player president of the NFLPA, and Ed Garvey, executive director, were on opposite sides. Anderson favors acceptance while Garvey fears that the agreement would negate players' rights newly won in the nation's courts, particularly the overturning of the so-called Rozelle Rule.

"I feel this is a proposal worthy of the players' acceptance," said Anderson before entering the Monday night meeting. "The controversy (among the player representatives) surrounds the questions of total freedom or benefits for the greatest number."

Garvey was tight-lipped in public about the internal dispute but a source said he feared that the proposal runs counter to victories won by the players in court.

"Everyone wants an agreement but we want to make sure we have an agreement that is a 'legal' agreement," a source close to Garvey said.

Details of the proposed agreement which Anderson said he received last Thursday were not made public.

But The Associated Press learned that parts of the offer include a 43-man squad limit with a four-man taxi squad, the taxi squad members to be paid $500 per week; establishment of a panel to judge injury grievance cases, rather than have those cases judged by a neutral arbitrator as in the past, and a raise in Super Bowl pay from $15,000 to $18,000 for the winners and $7,500 to $9,000 for the losers, plus other increases for postseason games, such as the conference playoffs and Pro Bowl.

The New York Times said there also is an important proposal concerning the controversial reserve clause. The clause now permits a player to become a free agent after playing out his option year after refusing to sign a contract.

The AP also learned that a player dissatisfied with the NFL team which drafted him out of college could elect to go into a supplementary draft if he has not signed his initial contract.

The club obtaining a player who shifts teams by his own choice would have to compensate that player's former team with draft choices. A topflight player would cost two first-round draft choices, with a descending scale for others.

That, in effect, would reinstitute the Rozelle Rule, which has been declared unconstitutional by a federal judge in Minneapolis. But the scale set up would make the draft choices predetermined, rather than have the commissioner set the compensation in each individual case. The players' ratings would be done by a committee representing players and owners.

Sports briefs

DENVER (AP) — Johnny Wilson, a veteran of 11 seasons as a player in the National Hockey League and a coach in both the NHL and World Hockey Association, will be named the head coach of the NHL Colorado Rockies today, the Rocky Mountain News reported.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers Monday acquired Baltimore Colts quarterback Marty Domres, a spokesman for the San Francisco team said.

The National Football League 49ers acquired Domres, a seven-year veteran, in exchange for a 1978 draft choice. The 6-foot, 220-pound quarterback was to join the 49ers Tuesday.

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers had more bad news in the injury department Monday.

The club says Steve Kemp, the Tigers' first-round draft choice, is out for the remainder of the year with an ankle injury almost identical to the one which sidelined Aurelio Rodriguez on Sunday.

MIAMI (AP) — Safety Bryant Salter, absent without leave since acquired by the Miami Dolphins from the Washington Redskins, plans to report to the National Football League club today, his attorney said.

"Based upon (Dolphin Coach Don) Shula's assurances to me that a concrete (contract) proposal will be transmitted to me by this afternoon, Bryant will be reporting today," attorney Andrew Levy said.

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Mariners and Toronto Blue Jays, the two expansion baseball teams in the American League next season, have received "a shot in the arm" through an agreement granting them permission to purchase players before the Nov. 5 league expansion draft, a Mariners official says.

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — Earl Anthony successfully defended his title in the $60,000 Waukegan Open Bowling Tournament and he did it by rolling a near perfect game.

Anthony, in picking up a $6,000 paycheck to boost his winnings this year to $89,278, came within one strike of a perfect game in defeating Tom Wright 279-194 Monday night to capture his fifth tournament of the year and 25th of his career.

MONTREAL (AP) — Team Canada tuned up for its opening game in the six-country Canada Cup hockey tournament that starts this week with a 7-4 triumph over Czechoslovakia, the reigning world amateur champions.

Jimmy Connors Open favorite

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Jimmy Connors is seeded No. 1, Manuel Orantes is the defending champion and Bjorn Borg is coming off a big victory in the U.S. Pro championships. But they're just three of many who must be considered legitimate contenders for the men's singles title at the 1976 U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

The U.S. Open begins a 12-day run at the West Side Tennis Club Wednesday, and solid cases can be made for nearly a dozen men in the chase for a $30,000 first prize from the total purse of $416,600 in this richest of tennis events.

Connors, the winner here two years ago and losing finalist last time around, won 22 matches in a row before bowing in the quarter-finals of the U.S. Pro last week.

Orantes, the Spanish lefthander, plays particularly well on slow surfaces and the artificial Har-Tru courts here play slow as clay. But he's recovering from an arm injury, and it was still questionable today as to whether he'd even be able to compete.

Sweden's Borg is the Wimbledon king and scored a big victory in the U.S. Pro championships at Longwood Cricket Club, beating Harold Solomon in the final Monday night.

But this will be anything but a three-way fight. There's Ilie Nastase, the fiery Romanian who has as much talent as anyone in the game; Adriano Panatta of Italy, winner of the French and Italian Opens on clay earlier this year; Guillermo Vilas, the young Argentinian ace, and the American "Bagel Twins," Solomon and Eddie Dibbs.

Panatta, Solomon and Dibbs are particularly strong on slow courts like the ones installed here last year.

Then there is Arthur Ashe, the American veteran who generally is not at his best on this type of court but is always a threat, and the often-brilliant Mexican, Raul Ramirez.

First-round pairings Wednesday include Connors against veteran Bob Hewitt of South Africa, Borg against Cliff Fletcher of Australia, Nastase against Onny Parun of New Zealand, Dibbs against Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico, Orantes against Jun Kuki of Japan and Panatta against Ove Bengtson of Sweden.

The women's side is not so complicated. If Chris Evert's injured finger is okay, she rates as the overwhelming choice to add the $30,000 first prize—same as the men get—to her bulging bankroll.

BORG WINS — Bjorn Borg defeats Harold Solomon in the final round of the U.S. Professional Tennis Championships at Longwood Cricket Club in Brookline, Mass., Monday.

'Cool' Borg nabs pro title

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg was polite, but, as usual, outwardly emotionless after winning the U.S. Pro Tennis Championship for the third year in a row.

Yes, his immediate goal is to win the U.S. Open, about the only major title which has eluded him. And, yes, his overall goal is to be No. 1 in the world.

"I've been like this for the last five years," the 20-year-old Borg said when asked about his lack of emotion Monday night after he whipped Harold Solomon of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6-7, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2 on Longwood's clay center court.

"What do you want me to do, cry?" he said with a grin. "Actually, I used to get excited, but I was losing. For the last five years I've been working on keeping my concentration at all times. Concentration is a big thing in tennis."

Borg collected $25,000, boosting his earnings for the year $182,000, after extending his winning streak to 18 matches on three visits to Longwood.

"It's really fun to win this title three years in a row," he said. "It's very satisfying. I like to come here, but it's still very difficult to see the ball. The lights are better this year, but they still need more light here."

Borg, who was sidelined five weeks with a pulled stomach muscle injury suffered en route to the Wimbledon title in July, reiterated that he feels "fine" and "very eager" to play.

"The rest was good for me," he said. "I felt good coming here and now I'm ready for Forest Hills. That's one I want to win very much. As for being seeded second there (behind Jimmy) Connors, it doesn't matter. No. 1 or No. 2, it doesn't make any difference."

Borg was bothered by chilly weather, and Solomon's patient style of soft shots from the baseline, at the start of the title match in the 49th U.S Pro tournament. He lost the tie-breaker 7-3 in dropping the first set, but pulled his game together in the second set when Solomon's legs began stiffening from the cold.

"This is probably the best I've ever played against Bjorn," the 23-year-old Solomon said after his lifetime record versus Borg dropped to 0-7. "He's the only player around I haven't beaten so I'll keep trying. It's some consolation that I finally won a set from him. I've won only three in all the times we've played."

As another consolation, Solomon, who was seeded eighth here, collected $12,500, hiking his 1976 earnings to more than $135,000.

Australia's Ray Ruffels and Allan Stone won the doubles championship with a 3-6, 7-6 victory over Mike Cahill of Eagle, Wis., and John Whitlinger of Neenah, Wis. Ruffels and Stone captured the $7,500 top prize, while the losers split $3,750.

The eight-day tournament, worth $125,000, was a big success, drawing about 80,000 fans. Just 12 years ago, it was rescued from oblivion as a $10,000 event by Longwood and the New England Merchants Bank.

Upland girls set practice

Practice sessions for the Upland High girls volleyball and tennis teams will open Wednesday.

Members of the tennis squad are to report to the Upland High tennis courts at 9 a.m. Wednesday, while the volleyball team will meet in the school gym at 10 a.m.

Girls are reminded that they should have their physical forms completed and should bring suitable practice equipment.

Owls slate scrimmage

The 1976 Citrus College football team will make its first public appearance in a controlled scrimmage vs. Golden West College on Saturday, Sept. 4.

The scrimmage is slated to begin at 10 a.m. at Citrus Stadium and the public is invited to attend.

Fair announces stakes schedule

Headed by the 29th running of the $30,000-added Pomona Handicap, a roster of 13 Thoroughbred stakes events has been announced for the 1976 race meeting at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona.

The 14-day session at the half-mile oval opens Friday, September 17, and the popular "stakes-a-day" format will be offered, as the estimated $125,000 Pomona Quarter Horse Futurity is scheduled for Monday, September 27.

Announcement of the stakes schedule was made by Los Angeles County Fair association Secretary-Manager, Phil D. Shepherd, and John Harley, Director of Racing and Racing Secretary.

The stakes events, which offer a total of $220,000 in added money, are part of a purse distribution which is expected to approach $800,000 for the 14-day meeting.

Condition books for the Pomona season are now available at racing centers in the West or from Hartley at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

In addition to the $800,000 in Thoroughbred purses, the Fair will distribute approximately $88,000 in purses for the speedy Quarter Horses, and Appaloosas will vie for nearly $30,000.

The Pomona Handicap, carded at nine furlongs, is the last of four stakes for three-year-olds and up, and that quarter includes the six-furlong Governor's Cup and the mile and one-sixteenth C.B. Afflerbaugh Stakes, headliners on the first two Saturday programs of the season. Completing the foursome is the five and one-half furlong Aprisa Handicap set for Thursday, September 30.

Older fillies and mares will meet in the six-furlong Bangles and Beads Stakes and the mile and one-sixteenth Las Madrinas Handicap.

Highlight of the opening day program and the first of three stakes for sophomores is the Foothill Stakes, a six-furlong dash that leads up to the mile and one-sixteenth Derby Trial Stakes and the mile and one-eighth Pomona Derby.

Three-year-old fillies have their major opportunity in the C.T.B.A. Marian Stakes at a mile and one-sixteenth.

Carded at six-furlongs for two-year-olds are the Bustles and Bows for fillies and the Beau Brummel for colts and geldings. The mile and one-sixteenth Gateway to Glory Stakes is for juveniles of either sex.

Brezhnev defies his own human rights promises

By NEA/London Economist News Service

The trick of appearing to move while standing still is not easy to perform. During the past 12 months the Soviet authorities have failed in a valiant effort to perform it.

A year ago, on Aug. 1, 1975, Leonid Brezhnev signed at Helsinki the final declaration of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE), a 35-government fathering which he had long striven to promote and which he would now dearly like to forget. It went badly wrong, from his point of view. He found himself obliged to make all sorts of promises about things that would actually make Europeans feel more secure and help them to cooperate.

As he had never meant to do anything like that, it was clear that he would have to order his underlings to go through some appropriate motions but not to comply with the Helsinki terms in any real way. He thus set them a difficult task, even for his specialist in doublethink. A year later, it is clear that they have muffed it.

Brezhnev fought for the CSCE because he thought it would enhance his personal stature, because of a mystical faith in the power of unceasing repetition of the world "detente," and because of a Metternichian devotion to the idea of getting all of Europe's rulers to promise the respect the status quo.

Commentary

He promised at Helsinki that he would "facilitate freer movement and contacts, individually and collectively, whether privately or officially"; "ensure that the fees for travel documents and visas are acceptable"; and "deal in a positive and humanitarian spirit"; and as quickly as possible, with requests for exit permits needed for the reuniting of families and for marriages. The same promises were made by the other East European governments.

But many hundreds of families remain divided by the iron curtain; thousands of Soviet applicants for exit permits are still being rebuffed; and applicants are still cruelly victimized, despite the Helsinki promise that they would not lose any of their rights.

Last month it was announced that personal representations made by Bucharest by the French foreign minister had produced permission for 20 Frenchmen to marry their Rumanian fiancees and bring them to France; but Rumania is still keeping hundreds of other engaged couples apart. East Germany has recently permitted more family reunions, but it was committed to doing this before it signed the Helsinki text and it has limited the exit permits mainly to elderly people.

In January, Russia reduced the price of an exit visa (from 400 rubles to 300, which still equals the average Russian's salary for two months), and asserted that it was simplifying the complex and daunting procedures involved. But it has offset these gestures by sharply raising the duties levied on gifts from aboard of both clothes and money; many applicants for visas, being automatically dismissed from their jobs, depend on these gifts for survival.

At Helsinki, the Soviet government promised to improve the dissemination in its territory of imported newspapers and publications and the working conditions of foreign correspondents. The latest reports indicate that, except in Poland, it is still almost impossible for unprivileged inhabitants of Eastern Europe and Russia to obtain non-Communist newspapers or periodicals.

Marginal concessions have been made to journalists. They have been told, for example, that they need no longer apply through the Soviet foreign ministry when seeking interviews with officials in other ministries. They can travel a little farther than before, and give a little less advance notice of their travel plans.

But they must still live and work in segregated, guarded ghettos, and Russians make unauthorized contact with them at their peril.

At Helsinki, the government promised to "encourage the effective exercise" of civil, political and other "rights and freedoms." Last month a report showing how far the Soviet government has failed, in this and other respects, to comply with its Helsinki promises was circulated to embassies in Moscow by the group of courageous dissidents, headed by Yuri Orlov, which was formed in May to monitor the government's compliance.

The group has found "no changes for the better" on exit permits, and no cessation of such inhumane practices as the forcible taking away of children from parents who adhere to a religion other than Marxism, or the torturing of dissidents in "psychiatric" jails. The KGB has threatened Orlov and his group with dire penalties.

It would be wrong to assume that nothing was achieved by the long struggle to get provisions on human rights and free contacts into the Helsinki text. Since last August the Soviet and East European governments have revealed a worried new sensitivity about these matters.

In any East-West encounter, the Russians can no longer shut off all discussion of human rights and contacts by indignantly asserting that these are domestic matters; for, by signing last year's declaration, Brezhnev himself made them matters of legitimate international concern — indeed, of international responsibility.

The delcaration committed the signatories to a future discussion of the extent of their compliance with its terms. The prescribed discussion will begin at Belgrade next June. At these meetings, all the 35 participating states may face criticism for failure to match the standards of conduct set out at Helsinki. Fair enough.

But it is the regime headed by Brezhnev, the initiator of the CSCE, that is liable to be branded with the most abject failure. Before next summer, he will need to do something more impressive than just shuffling his feet.

Plan would enable elderly homeowners to have income

NEW YORK (AP) — A Wharton School professor has devised a financial plan that would enable elderly homeowners to obtain a regular income from the equity in their homes while being guaranteed lifelong occupancy.

If implemented, the plan has the potential for greatly relieving the financial problems of elderly persons while simulateneously assuring them of independence and security in familiar surroundings.

Jack Guttentag, who holds the chair in banking at Wharton, the business and finance school of the University of Pennsylvania, has put his plan in the public domain, for possible promotion by insurers, government and savings institutions.

So far, he said, one large bank has seriously considered the plan, and many individuals have expressed interest, but it is not yet being marketed, even though he believes it can be offered with actuarial assurance equal to life insurance policies.

Guttentag's ideas, contained in "The Bulletin" of the New York University Graduate School of Business Administration, include two new financial instruments, a split equity plan and a nonrepayable loan plan.

In the split equity concept, the equity of a property is divided in two components, a lifetime interest or right of occupancy, and the residual equity, which is the right to dispose of the property after the occupant's death.

To implement, the elderly occupant sells the residual equity, but instead of obtaining a lump sum payment from the buyer, he or she receives a lifetime annuity or guaranteed income.

Upon the death of the occupant, the buyer ceases further payments and takes possession, sometimes obtaining a more substantial property for the money than would have been possible in a conventional transaction.

The possibility exists, of course, that the elderly owner or owners will enjoy a life span greater than those listed in the actuarial tables, in which the buyer would have to pay a larger sum.

Large institutions, however, can benefit from the laws of large numbers, which generally dictate that extremes average out.

The nonrepayable loan, the other instrument in the professor's concept, is simply a loan secured by a mortgage repayable only upon the death of the borrower or on the prior sale of the property.

Guttentag believes the time is ripe for the development of these instruments in the United States.

"With the proportion of elderly in the population steadily rising and concern for wealth bestowals through estates declining, the potential market is increasing rapidly," he said.

There is also a strong social interest in the development of the instruments, he believes, because the aged comprise a large part of the poverty problem. The median income for households over 65 is less than half that for all households.

Despite the income problems of many elderly, home ownership is higher than for the population in general. Even for elderly couples with incomes of less than $1,000 a year, home ownership has been measured at 69 per cent.

This home ownership sometimes is achieved at great sacrifice and hardship, however. While property taxes, for example, amount to only 3.4 per cent of total money income for the average homeowner, it comes to nearly 16 per cent for those with incomes of less than $2,000.

Guttentag seeks to relieve this burden while raising income, by utilizing the equity in the house, which generally can otherwise be made available only by mortgaging or selling the property.

I estimate the households 65 years of age and older today have a net equity in homes of at least $80 billion, which defines the outer limit of the benefit they would derive from new financial instruments," he wrote.

Equity of that amount, it is estimated, could generate annual annuities in excess of $5 billion.

The reason that most of the elderly today retain an equity in their homes, Guttentag believes, is that they wish to remain living there — not because they wish to leave a home to their heirs.

Therefore he concludes, let them live better.

Books big sellers on market shelves

NEW YORK (AP) — Magazines and turnips might seem to be unrelated, except in the sense that one might be food for the body, the other for the mind, but your supermarket manager will tell you differently.

If trends continue, it won't be long before sales of printed materials in these traditional outlets for household products will reach $500 million, providing both publishers and retailers with a tidy profit.

"Progressive Grocer" magazine estimates that sales of paperbacks and magazines in "grocery" outlets last year reached $455 million, "a good sized piece of a total market estimated at $2 billion."

Market managers reportedly are enthusiastic about the growth, since most of them feel they are in a profit squeeze on conventional items. And publishers, pressed by rising postal rates, are happy to have alternative outlets.

Some supermarkets now have developed what used to be a small rack near the checkout counter into an entire reading department, where shoppers can purchase the latest issues and perhaps become inspired by the food ads.

Some managers claim the publications outsell grocery items, and they are appreciative of the fact that, unlike turnip distributors, the magazine distributors take back unsold copies.

America's space program demonstrated that the search for perfection is a very costly endeavor and that perfection never can be achieved with certainty. Still, the quest goes on in various areas of endeavor, and the bills are rising.

Health care is a prime example. Human beings are finite, but money is spent attempting to disprove it. Soon, claims John Alexander McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, we'll have to make tough choices.

The simple truth is that we can't afford the total best. Instead, we'll have to decide on which areas of medical care offer the best possibilities for the money, McMahon maintains. Otherwise the bills might be unpayable.

Nothing, however, demonstrates the point better than the controversy over the paper match and the matchbook. Matches are potentially dangerous, of course, nothing is likely to change that fact. But we're trying.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has proposed a standard that would require that matches be manufactured to self-extinguish after 15 seconds and matchbooks made with devices to inhibit use by children.

While the proposals are designed to reduce accidents, the Council on Wage and Price Stability feels they could have the opposite impact.

How? By raising the cost and causing consumers to switch to wooden matches, which also are hazardous. And also by making those matchbooks even more fascinating to curious children.

If the standards become effective they could raise the cost to consumers by $68 million a year, the council said, and the essential problem will remain unsolved.

Matches burn and children are curious, and it isn't likely that any millions of dollars will change the facts.

It isn't always what you buy at the grocery store that ruins your budget.

The Conference Board, a research and educational organization, reports that a family of four must earn more than $19,000 in 1976 to maintain the purchasing power of $10,000 in 1960.

Among the chief reasons: higher federal income taxes and Social Security contributions.

Paraplegic sailor is own inventor

WILSONVILLE, Ore. (AP) — Although he is a paraplegic, Ron Gill, 29, plans to navigate the open seas soon in a sailboat he built.

Gill said he will sail suspended over the deck from a tilted mast and utilizing "a sailing system I've been developing for paraplegics during the past three years."

"It does not include the traditional boom," he explained, "because that could swing around and sweep me off the boat."

Gill, who has a degree in mechanical engineering from California State Polytechnic University, has worked more than a year in the yard of his rural home on the boat's main hull, a half-inch-thick fiberglass and foam sandwich shell he bought in one piece. He has installed hatches and windows and spent many hours grinding and sanding.

Gill, whose legs have been paralyzed since he was run over by a motor vehicle when he was four, said he will be accompanied on his around-the-world trip by a crew of a few friends.

Music notes

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Music Council has announced the designation of 200 historic music landmarks.

It says this recognizes "two centuries of American musical culture."

Each of the sites will be permanently marked by a bronze plaque.
